Montgomery Daily Advertiser.

VOL. XVI. MONTGOMERY, ALA., SATURDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 8, 1864. NO. [illegible]

The Daily Advertiser.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

Daily Advertiser, one month.....$5 00
" " three months.....15 00
Weekly, per annum.....15 00
" " month.....1 50

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

For each square of ten lines or less, or space to the amount of one square, for first insertion $3,50 and for each subsequent insertion $2,00.

Those advertisements not marked on the copy for a specified time, will be discontinued at the end of two weeks.

No advertisement taken for a longer period than three months.

Candidate announcements for office to be charged as other advertisements.

Friday Evening, October 7, 1864.

At the renting of the stalls in the market in Selma on the 3d, the Mississippian says the following amounts were respectively obtained: $3,825, $3,700, $3,000, $3,000, and a coffee stall went for $600. Total $13,425. The stalls were rented to the highest bidder.

ARRIVAL OF YANKEES.—Twelve hundred Yankees, (says the Mississippian,) shipped by Gen. Forrest to a more Southern clime, arrived at Selma on the 4th!

The total amount of taxable property in Muscogee county, Georgia, in which the city of Columbus is situated, on the first of April last, was forty-three million four hundred and seventy thousand dollars.

A LESSON.—Charles Lamb—who has not heard of the "gentle Charles?"—was much addicted to the wine cup. Hear his solemn warning:

"The waters have gone over me. But out of the black depths, could I be heard, I would cry out to all those who have set a perilous flood. Could the youth to whom the flavor of his first wine cup is delicious as the opening scenes of life, or the entering upon some newly discovered paradise, look into my desolation and be made to understand what drear thing it is when a man shall feel himself going down a precipice with open eyes and passive will—to see his destruction and have no power to stop it, yet feel it all the way emanating from himself; to see all goodness emptied out of Him, and yet not be able to forget a time when it was otherwise; to bear about the piteous spectacle of his own ruin; could he see my fevered eye, fevered with last night's drinking, and feverishly looking for the night's repetition of the folly; could he but feel the body of the death out of which I hourly, with tender outory, beg to be delivered—it were enough to make him dash the sparkling beverage to the earth in all the pride of the mantling temptation.

LITTLE THIEVES IN A TIGHT PLACE.—"Le France" gives the following story, which we translate verbatim:

The police arrested three little thieves named Cauvey, Arnaud and Leon Niviore, charged with having stolen various articles of clothing. These young thieves wandered some days through the woods, where they had taken refuge from the police. Unluckily, the rain and hunger surprised them in their retreat, and not knowing where to seek for safety and refreshment they found themselves famishing in the most cruel situation.

The idea occurred to them to imitate the shipwrecked sailors of the Medusa. They drew straws to decide which of the party should furnish food for the others. The lot fell upon the young Arnaud. Immediately Cauvey and Niviere made their preparations to put the unlucky Arnaud on the table. But fear lent strength to the victim, who fled into the forest crying for help. His comrades pursued him with the phrenzy of famine; but the cries of the victim had been heard by a huntsman, who came accidently upon this extraordinary and well authenticated scene.

What is the Future of Our Confederacy?

Our future is to fight—to fight while an enemy pollutes our soil—to fight as long as they deny our rights—to fight until independence is achieved—to fight as long as we have men willing to battle for homes, for children, for liberty, for all they hold dear. We have suffered too much, says the Macon Telegraph, endured too much, lost too much, to fall now in the achievement of all for which such a great price was paid. Hope still looms up grandly and gloriously before us, liberty and honor and happiness and prosperity still lure us on to the mighty and magnificent prize for which we struggle; and while such is the case—while success is almost in our grasp, shall we unmanfully falter? Never. Southerners, be stout of heart—be firm—be unfaltering. Dare what seems a cruel lot. It only leads to the greater glory. 'Tis the brave, the unyielding, the determined, that fortune favors. But deserve her smile by your gallantry, and all she has is yours.

Washington Items.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—It is announced in official circles that there is not a word of truth in any of the stories in circulation about peace propositions. The Richmond papers of Wednesday make no allusion to the subject, and no communication of any kind has been received in regard to negotiations between Gen. Sherman and the rebel authorities in reference to peace, nor has any messenger arrived from there, letters from either Jeff. Davis or Jake Thompson on this subject. Telegraphic communication with Gen. Sherman is uninterrupted, and all the stories are traced to simple canards, manufactured in the interest of heavy stock speculations.

GEN. MEADE.—Happening to be at the railroad depot last night, we had an opportunity of witnessing something of the spirit of true nobility. One brave fellow whose leg had been amputated, called for an ambulance to go to the hospital; but not being able to get a conveyance, he said—"well, turn me over on this plank. It's as good as the ground, and I have tried that, and can rest well." Well soon whip our enemies, and then we'll all go to bed.

The new commander-in-chief, who was [illegible] with. He is the last of five [illegible] whose lives have been filled [illegible] and his son have both been [illegible] and his wife has become blind [illegible] "well," said he, "if [illegible] I would rather go [illegible] to be buried [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] the

The Daily Advertiser.

Vol. [illegible]

MONTGOMERY, ALA., [illegible], 1864.

The Extra Session.

The two Houses of the General Assembly, [illegible] session of Gov. Watts, [illegible] last night after a session of [illegible] The Senate and House failing to [illegible] proposed to [illegible] which [illegible] to the Legislature, now in the [illegible] with which to make pay [illegible] being of the [illegible] appropriating two millions to the [illegible] soldiers, to be paid in Superior [illegible] of Montgomery and Mobile; [illegible] Treasury, [illegible] the Quartermaster [illegible] Tax [illegible] twenty-five years; and to prevent the oppression of [illegible] by the illegal execution [illegible] Institutions were laid on the table [illegible] is sound, and we have need be entertained that this body will do [illegible] the proud position maintained by Alabama soldiers on so many fields of this war.

NEWSPAPER EXPRESS.—The Richmond Examiner says the Southern Express Company a few [illegible] for carrying ninety-one bundles of [illegible] from Raleigh to Richmond. The [illegible] are said to cost $40,000. In ordinary times $4,000 would have more than paid [illegible] The [illegible] for which we have ordered [illegible] will cost us at least $1,000. In ordinary times [illegible] Confederate, furnishing [illegible] of publishing newspapers [illegible] prices for printing [illegible] it is evident that an increase of price must be resorted to by publishers, in order to continue the publication of their papers.

YANKEE LIES.—It is stated that General Ed. Johnston, who was [illegible] captured at Spottsylvania Court House, and exchanged at Charleston, [illegible] to command Gen. French's Division of the Army of Tennessee.

ALABAMA SOLDIERS HOME.

[CALHOUN Reporter.]

[illegible] SENATE.

TUESDAY MORNING, Oct. 4, 1864.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

Prayer by the Rev. Mr. Parker, of the House.

Mr. [illegible] of M., from the Judiciary Committee, reported favorably [illegible] Allen Hooks' bill to amend [illegible] Also, reported favorably [illegible] bill to amend [illegible] Courts. Passed.