REGISTER AND ADVERTISER. The Atlanta Confederacy says that only $10,000 of the Confederate bills were in circulation at that place, instead of $100,000 as was at first reported. DEATH OF EX GOVERNOR MATHEW. Hon. J. M. Matthews, of Mississippi, formerly Governor of that State, died on the 28th ult. at Palmistoga, Ga., at the residence of Dabney F. Jones, Esq., a relation by marriage. His illness, which was cholera morbus, lasted only four days.

THE ATLANTA MYSTERY EXPLAINED. The dead body reported to have been so mysteriously carried from Atlanta, was that of Mr. Lawrence, of Columbus, who fell from a window in the presence of Messrs. Devore and Taylor, and died in a short time after he was taken up. The gentleman named did not consider a coroner's inquest necessary, as he was not found dead, but thought it necessary to convey the body to Columbus with all possible haste, which they accordingly did.

THE HEAD AND FRONT OF Col. McCollough's offense was the leading of his gallant band unopposedly against the Yankee forces, chiefly composed of Dutch militia, overrunning the State. McCollough's band was separated from his command, and was captured by the Federal forces under Col. John McNeil, who first summoned a drum beat and martial and sentenced the daring party to be shot as a traitor in arms and rebellion against the United States, and State of Missouri.

Our Army Correspondence. LETTER FROM GORDONSVILLE. PRELIMINARY TO THE GREAT BATTLE. There is no foundation for the wonderful reports that appear in some of the Richmond papers of yesterday, to the effect that Jackson and Longstreet had crossed the Rappahannock in the direction of Washington, and that Stuart had reached Alexandria. All that is in prospect is the army of the Potomac, which is now in the hands of the Federal forces.
