DEALERS IN BOYKIN RETURN

Herald Correspondent Says Mobilian Has Captured Hearts of Democrats In Washington; Hardest Worker

By WALTER BROWN
(Herald's Washington Correspondent)
WASHINGTON—If Alabama has ever had a real "Representative at Large," that person is Frank W. Boykin, of Mobile.

Coming to Washington during the final period of the first session of the Seventy-Fourth Congress, Representative Boykin lost little time in finding his way around this city, which has a bureau in every corridor and a commission in every block.

This correspondent has been in Washington for a number of years and during this time many congressmen have come and gone. Some members require three and four years to get hold of themselves and prove useful to their constituents. Others never get to the ropes and soon or later they fade from Capitol Hill.

But there are a limited few who click from the minute they take their oath and one of these is Frank Boykin. If there is a man in the House of Representatives who has more energy than any other, it is Frank Boykin. He has never attracted this writer's attention. This "rearing to go" physique, combined with a jovial and hearty nature, has put Boykin out in front with these members of Congress who do things. When Boykin came to Congress he found some of his colleagues on the sick list and others feeling the need for a rest when the session last year ended. The Mobile contingent decided to remain in Washington during the hot summer months and look to Boykin as one of his official family, more or less, and soon after Congress adjourned he was invited to come into Washington from all over the state to see Boykin. The congressman did not confine his activities to his district but took up his projects in every section of Alabama.

This does not mean he neglected his district. On the contrary it received the best treatment in years. At the time of Boykin's return to Congress Alabama had a record in the United States which had received less New Deal money than any other state. For several months it was without any representation in congress because of the "hook barrel" activity. Although overwhelmingly democratic, the first district had been sadly neglected.

Boykin's colleagues on this fact when he came to Washington and soon money began pouring into the district. Boykin shot through the cold storage project for the Mobile docks, which will not only make the city but the entire state as a whole. PWA and WPA money soon began being felt throughout the district.

Despite this "hook barrel" activity, Boykin found time to stay on the House floor and take part in the deliberations in that body. He voted with President Roosevelt on the utility holding company bill and for the passage of the bonus bill. He would not follow off after his colleague, Representative George Huddleston, his New Deal activities. Boykin was soon put down as a regular Roosevelt democrat in the little black book in which the democratic leadership keeps tabs of the voting records of members.

Boykin's colleagues and his other friends in Washington called to his support in the scramble for committee assignment. As a result, Boykin secured the best committee assignment any new member had received in many months. He was put on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, a major committee on which new members are seldom placed, and this gives him wide opportunity to develop the waters of his district as well as aid the fishing industry there.

Another important assignment was to the Committee on Patents which is now working on a revision in (Continued on page three)

Boykin's Labors Get State Money

It was due to the assistance of Congressman Frank Boykin given other Alabama Washington leaders that the state has secured the money to develop the waters of his district as well as aid the fishing industry there.

VETERAN PAPER IS MAJOR TARGET BY BOYKIN Foe

Weekly's Support Of Incumbent Drawing Campaign Fire

Several months ago, the South Alabama Veteran said in a column of an ex-service man for office provided "everything else was equal." Bunkley took the very start of his campaign swing into a mid-swinging tirade against Congressman Boykin and the same day the editor of the paper as well as against Congressman Wright Patman, an ex-service man who spent thousands of his own money to help pass the soldiers' bonus. His attacks have also been directed against prominent ex-service men throughout the district and state wherever he was opposed.

FARMERS GROUP SHOWN AS B G ANTI-FDR BODY

Black Committee In Expose Of Liberty League Backing

Evidence has been produced by the Black Lobby Committee that the Liberty League, a group of farmers' Independence Council of America was the "elimination of the New Deal" and further evidence is hinted which will show that it is an ally of the Republican Party.

Many farmers in Alabama were lobbying under the impression that this organization was a New Deal supporter and that several congressmen from this state who voted against their best interests. However, the truth has been shown by the Senate Lobbying Committee that it is a Republican group and that its objective is the elimination of the New Deal.

Another purpose of the Council, it was indicated, was the writing into the Republican platform of an agricultural plank that would rescue the American farmer from their alleged unhappy plight.

During the day it was brought out that officials of the Council had conferred with Governor Land, Colonel Knox, former Governor Frank L. Hunter, Governor Joseph B. Foster, and other prominent leaders of the Liberty League. George K. Ball, Republican National Committee Chairman from Indiana, Lamont, Duff and other prominent members of the Council, as well as representatives of the General Motors Corporation, were also present. The committee contended, was to wean the farm vote away from the New Deal and "bring it back to the Republican fold."

The witness who was examined along these lines was Stanley F. Morse, a writer and columnist for the Liberty League. Mr. Morse insisted that the Council is non-partisan, but the committee produced letters written by him to prominent Republicans in which he stammered toward the New Deal.

He admitted that the office of the Council, until its removal to Chicago, was also the office of the Liberty League and the headquarters of Mr. Shouse. After the transfer of the Liberty League headquarters were in the office of the Chicago division of the Liberty League, but the Council was not a part of the League.

Speakers Position Held By Boykin

Every member of the Senate and House of Representatives looked with surprise one day soon after Frank Boykin had taken his seat in Congress when Speaker Byrnes turned the gavel over to the Mobilian. Congressman Boykin was speaker pro tem of the House for more than an hour. Some of the oldest members of the Senate and House declared that they never in their recollection had a member so new been accorded such a high honor.

Monroeville Gets Sunday P.O. Service

Citizens of Monroeville, in Montgomery County, have secured a Sunday mail service. This city has been without this service for many years and it was the result of good work on the part of the Mobile District Congressman which brought this needed service.

Popular Veteran and Legionnaire Wages Winning Campaign

Opponent Is Scared

Anderton Supporting Ex-Night Judge; Is Against Bankhead

Both of the political factions in Montgomery have united on eliminating McCord. Leaders for the Gunter faction and leaders in the Hill faction are working earnestly for Murphy. McCord's supporters are withdrawing their support from the Roosevelt program in Alabama has weighed heavily against him. His attempt to hand pick a slate of delegates and force them on the people by court action accused Democratic leaders all over the state. McCord's slate did not include either Senator Bankhead or Senator Bankhead and his efforts to eliminate McCord are being supported by all of their friends and supporters.

Murphy has made a canvass of the state and his supporters are being splendidly received in every section. His announcement that he would not be a candidate for federal job when elected National Committeeman, but would serve the state as he served the Legion, was applauded. Reliable reports indicate that Murphy will carry every congressional district in the state. McCord's defeat will permanently eliminate him as a factor in Alabama politics.

New Cold Storage Plant Boykin's Work

Several hundred men are busy today on the $800,000 cold storage plant now under construction at the docks of Mobile. It was through the untiring efforts of Congressman Frank W. Boykin, of the First District, that this plant is being built.

With the completion of this New Deal project, farmers in the Mobile District can kill their meat in the summer and carry it straight to the cold storage plant where it will be frozen.

Library Fund Is Boykin's Work

The application of the City of Mobile for $22,368 for the Mobile Public Library to be used in the re-establishing of the library building is being pushed through successfully by the efforts of Congressman Frank W. Boykin.

Chairman Gaston Scott and Chief Clerk H. H. Holt, of the State Highway Commission, made a return trip to Washington in the interest of Federal funds to be used in the three-way construction plan. As the result of this trip, more than $1,000,000 in Federal funds for Alabama was approved. The trip was through the untiring efforts of Congressman Frank W. Boykin, of the First District, that this plant is being built.

Writer Shows Real Frank W. Boykin

saying again and again: "Call me Frank. What the hell's the use in calling me Mr. Boykin? After all everything's made for love, isn't it?"

"I say, he's one of the best known men in Alabama. He's partly owner of the fact that he hardly knows how many thousands of acres of land he owns in Alabama, and if he's broke today he's a millionaire tomorrow."

"Frank Boykin? Why, surely I know him. Everybody knows Frank." A politician told me that a prominent business told me that a prominent business executive told me that. The business executive went on to say, "I've never known anyone like Frank Boykin. With that same enthusiasm he can keep going day and night. He's been here in conference use up three and four secretaries. After he's been going five or six hours, he says, 'Excuse me a minute,' then goes over and lies down on a couch and in 30 seconds is asleep. He sleeps for five minutes, then is back at the table as fresh as ever. After the first six hours, he makes a practice of sleeping five minutes out of each 60, and following this routine, he has been known literally to keep going four days and four nights without ever taking off his clothes."

By midnight he had me and half a dozen other newspaper men with him. Then before he got to his yacht in Mobile Bay, and we couldn't exactly walk off and leave a host who was talking endlessly and bustling from one side of the deck to the other, rushing down below and hurrying back again to get forward ordering sandwiches, ordering drinks, slapping you on the back and telling you again and again that the hell's the use in going to bed. You can go to bed any time. After all, everything's made for love. Once in a while you just a peck when you can't at all make out, and when at last I managed to go to sleep at 3 o'clock I found out that I'd been in bed all night. Mr. Boykin was at that time singing—I couldn't at all make him out. I had no feeling about it, except that I disliked him. I disliked him even more the next morning when he woke me at 6 o'clock and ordered breakfast. "Damn the hell, you ever seen a dream walk-in?" he said and the added assurance that he had, and "Get up. Let's go catch a few tons of fishes. The whole ocean's full of 'em just waiting for us to catch them and prove that everything's made for love."

I had never come on the infernal party.

We were on Frank Boykin's yacht for three days. By the end of that time I was more puzzled as to how I felt about this man. No human being, I believed, could have such terrific enthusiasm, could be so forward ordering sandwiches, ordering drinks, slapping you on the back and telling you again and again that the hell's the use in going to bed. You can go to bed any time. After all, everything's made for love. LABOR, FARMERS ARE SOLID

Business Men Over Section Endorse Good Record in Washington; Knows How to Get Recognition From New Deal Leaders

By GUY A. MATLOCK
Voters of the First Alabama Congressional District will give to Frank W. Boykin the greatest complimentary vote ever accorded a candidate for Congress in the Democratic primary to be held May 5.

This is the consensus of opinion of every political leader in the entire six counties which comprise this voting district. These counties are Clarke, Marengo, Mobile, Choctaw, Washington, Monroe and Wilcox.

BOYKIN WORKING HARD FOR FREE PORT IN MOBILE

Millions of Dollars In New Trade Would Come Annually

Those who are against Frank W. Boykin's candidacy are men who feel out with the popular Mobile soon because they did not get a job for some other trial matter. They even admit this is their reason for fighting him and state that they will vote for Boykin.

Another reason for Boykin's increasing popularity is the fact that Bunkley has based his campaign on the fact that the country now is being seized upon by this crowd who are trying to pass off the inevitable landslide for Boykin.

Harry Hatfield, perennial candidate of Mobile, is leading the opposition party, but with the same amount of success which has greeted Hatfield's two recent campaigns. He is the only one who has the opposition by any means.

Organized labor over the district has been looking for a candidate because of his work in behalf of the workers in congress. Letters of praise for Boykin from labor leaders all over the country pour in every day, asking the united support of Boykin from all labor groups.

Veterans over the district have flocked to Boykin because of his unflinching fight in behalf of the district. Veterans over the district from Wright Patman and Elmer Vinson, co-authors of the bonus bill passed this year, are also flocking to Boykin for the splendid "cooperation of Frank W. Boykin, the bill would have been passed."

Farm leaders in Washington, including Senator John W. Bankhead, and others praise Boykin for his work in behalf of the farmer and the farmers.

It was Boykin who led the fight on the floor of congress to extend CCC camps over the United States. It was Boykin who has secured millions of dollars in New Deal projects for the benefit of the state. There has been so much that Frank Boykin has done for his district that he has been mentioned to mention them herein. Women and children alike declare that he has been the friend of everybody.

Alphonse Lucas Is Praised By Boykin

Congressman Boykin declares that he has the best secretary in the world in Alphonse Lucas, his personal secretary at his office in Washington.

Lucas has been associated with Boykin for several years in his business in Mobile. Boykin said that Lucas could be found in his desk in the house office building after midnight working and attending to his personal matters.

THE FUTURE OF THE FIRST DISTRICT DEMANDS FRANK W. BOYKIN IN CONGRESS

The Alabama Herald is delighted that President Roosevelt's leaders in Congress are calling for the return of Congressman Frank Boykin of the First Alabama District. One of the men who would get such a flattering endorsement of his candidacy from leaders in Washington. Men of experience in public affairs were not long recognizing that the people of the first district were right when they sent Frank Boykin to Washington to represent them.

Frank W. Boykin has served his people and his district well. For the people of the First Alabama District to fail to reward this type of service, would be a distinct loss to the district, the state and the nation. This human mass of energy has endeavored himself to the hearts of all who know him and official Washington has acclaimed him as one of the most efficient, honest and capable men in the entire congressional roster.

Congressman Boykin knows the needs of his people. He is familiar with their problems and he knows just what it will take to put the Mobile district in its rightful place in the world of commerce and progress. Boykin is a business man and he knows the ways and means of going about the business of a Congressman.

He has fought for the New Deal in Washington and he has stood side by side with President Roosevelt for the advancement of human welfare. Boykin knows of the sincerity and intent of President Roosevelt in opposing the selfish interests and fighting the battles of the plain people. For this reason he has followed him. His first vote in Congress was for a bill which President Roosevelt had personally asked for to aid the coal miners of the United States.

To say that Congressman Boykin has voted with the President on all New Deal legislation is sufficient for the endorsement of this paper. But Boykin has gone further than this. He has aided in the passage of bills favorable to the farmer, the ex-serviceman, the work of worker, organized labor and every other walk of life.

Reps. Wright Patman and Elmer Vinson have nothing but praise for the cooperation which Frank Boykin gave them in the passage of the Soil Conservation Bill. Both declare that if it were not for the support of the Mobilian, it is doubtful as to whether the bill would have passed.

Congressman Boykin has worked unceasingly for the development of the great Port of Mobile. Mobile's future growth depends upon improving this port—and Frank Boykin has fought untiringly for its development.

He advocated a free trade zone for the port. This would bring millions of more dollars annually into the port which is now going to other gulf shipping points. Coffee importers alone would save thousands of dollars every year if this free trade zone came to Mobile. There are countless other ways in which the port could prosper under this plan.

Congressman Boykin succeeded in getting a cold storage plant for the Mobile docks. This is of inestimable value to the farmers and shippers of the district. For such a project, Boykin worked hard and deserves much credit.

The Alabama Herald joins everybody in Washington. President Roosevelt himself, and the many thousands of supporters of this big-hearted, jovial and lovable Congressman from the First District, in predicting a landslide on May 5.

We do not even care to discuss or attempt to compare the qualifications of the unknown contestant of Frank Boykin. It would be ludicrous to even attempt to compare the two candidates. Boykin is a known, proven servant of the people, while on the other hand, his opponent is simply a man about whom the people know nothing.

We know Frank W. Boykin and know what we can expect of him. Regardless of whether we knew him personally or not his work in Washington during the last year would be sufficient to evoke commendation.

There has not been a man on Capitol Hill who has worked harder for the rights of the people than Frank Boykin. His letters from prominent Democratic leaders in Congress carried elsewhere in this issue will attest to his aggressiveness and sincerity.

On May 5 the people of the First District will give Frank W. Boykin what will be the greatest complimentary vote ever accorded a candidate in that section. Frank Boykin will deserve every vote cast for him on that day—he has served his people well and they owe it to themselves to return him to Washington to safeguard and foster their best interests.

It was Congressman Frank W. Boykin who took the lead in the fight against abandoning the CCC camps over the United States. Thousands of boys who today are still enrolled can thank the Mobile district representative for the continuance of their service.

Frank Boykin's superb work for the AAA is a matter of record and many of the great agricultural leaders in Congress, including Alabama's own Senator Bankhead, can attest to his valuable work. Boykin has will continue to be an untiring friend of the farmer.

Frank Boykin has gone out after the paper business for his district. He believes that in the next five years, practically all of the newspaper manufactured in the United States will come from the South.

People in Washington will tell you that Frank Boykin does not observe hours when it comes to working in his office. He can be found in his office after midnight working for his people.

Boykin is already a national figure. He deserves to go back to Congress.

WHY BOYKIN HAS DONE

Determined and untiring efforts upon arrival in Washington for approval through Finance Division, Legal Division, and Engineering Division, of all major PWA projects not only for the First District but for the entire State. Commemorative letters from all over the State from the organization of the commissioners, city engineers, etc. evidence Mr. Boykin's splendid work.

Final approval of the State Docks' Cold Storage Plant, Monroe County Schools, Butler Water Works, Mobile County Schools, etc. all PWA projects, was in a large measure due to the Congressman's efforts.

Congressman Boykin's efforts in working out a three-way paving program for Alabama Highways through the PWA have been publicly commended by Governor Graves, Mr. Gaston Scott, and others. It is also noted that the candidates and requested to support the candidates who have been endorsed in the coming primary. Attached is the recommendation of the Brotherhoods signed by the following:

GETTING VOTES BY THE BLOCK

IF HE'S A FARMER, I'M HAILE SELASSIE'S GREAT UNCLE

Letter from Boykin:

TO THE VOTERS OF THE FIRST DISTRICT. Since the first day you sent me to Washington, I have been constantly on the job looking after the interest of my constituents of the First Alabama District.

My office in Washington has not been closed for even one day since you elected me. When practically every other congressman in the entire United States went home last year, I stayed in Washington the entire time working with the heads of the different departments getting projects approved for the First District and the entire state of Alabama.

While in Washington, I have not worked for any particular class, but have worked for all classes.

In agriculture I refer you to the many letters I have received; on the soldiers bonus, I refer you to the letters of Reps. Patman and Vinson; on the AAA and the CCC, I also refer you to testimonial letters. I have worked diligently for a foreign trade zone for Mobile, the docks, cold storage plants and many other projects vital to my district.

I have worked for organized labor. Letters will attest to this. I expect to get 20 more cold storage plants for my district and expect to see practically all of the newprint in the country manufactured in the South in the next five years.

I have enjoyed being with you during the past few days and regret that I have not or will not have the pleasure of talking personally with each of you.

I promise you that I will continue to exert every ounce of my strength and energy for the welfare of my district and its people. I am whole heartedly for President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

My happiness knows no bounds at the acknowledgement of pledges of support from my many friends in the district. I am grateful to you for the time working with the heads of the different departments to again be your congressman for the next two years.

vents inward cargoes for American flag ships which is destined through transshipment to other countries. Goods cannot enter the country without payment of duty, the situation as to domestic producers and manufacturers will remain unchanged. They remain protected as before. The free zone as to them is extrajurisdictional; it foreign territory. The customs officers are simply transferred from the ship to the gates of the zone. The same duties are collected, only they are collected at a different place; suitable goods taken from the zone to the United States pay the duty just as before. Goods like the ship are only temporarily here while engaged in lawful foreign trade and commerce. The foreign ships themselves remaining in our port, only long enough to discharge or pick up partial lots of cargo, say 500 tons or more, or to include cost of free lighterage of smaller lots in ocean freight rates. Indications are that steamship companies will call at the free zone provided adequate facilities and quick turn-around are assured.

(D) Liberal interpretation of the zone. In the present day, we feel confident that sales are made while in transit. I feel confident that steamship companies would be willing to meet the rates of direct routes provided they were not distress or sub-normal rates.

(E) Reasonable charges for re-exporting. It is not necessary to compare the bonded warehouses and/or warehouses in the country of production or consumption.

Hence, in addition to the free zone, we are in favor of a free port and/or co-operative setup, along semi-barrier trading, which will make it possible to handle the surplus products, at the same time make possible the establishment of steamship services in combination with the United States ports to the markets of the world.

Out. But he was still going around fresh as ever, slipping us on the back and talking about his love, and offering to give us the yacht or anything else we wanted.

He offered me the privilege of coming down to his hunting preserve at Mackintosh to shoot some wild turkey. I accepted—partly to see the wild turkey, but even more, perhaps, to see the wild man; for I still didn't believe that there could be such a person as Frank Boykin.

Knowing Frank Boykin, I read his letters with deep interest. He had written me certain letters, and I told you some of the wildest stories in the world, and you won't believe them. But the astounding fact is that they are true. That man has had perfectly amazing experiences in hunting, in business, and in public life.

But I still didn't believe all he told me about his hunting preserve. I actually saw, and his story is being written partly as an apology for my doubts of Frank Boykin's tales, and partly to tell about the most unbelievable amount of wild life that exists on one game preserve in the United States.

His hunting preserve is in the dining room, and in the great parlor of Mr. Boykin's hunting lodge. There are mounted heads of great turkeys; there are photographs of Frank Boykin standing beside the second largest tarpon ever caught in the Gulf of Mexico, one day just off Dauphin Island.

"It's hard to argue against such pictorial evidence," one of my friends remarked. "But just wait till you hear 'em gobbling in the morning,'" Frank Boykin said. "What the great turkey use in looking at pictures? Wait till you see the old gentlemen themselves strutting before you."

The next morning we were waked at 3 o'clock. "It's bright and clear," the caretaker said. "They ought to be out by now. What the great turkey use in looking at pictures? Wait till you see the old gentlemen themselves strutting before you."

An hour later we were going down through the swamps to where Uncle Royal Reed, the greatest turkey caller in the world, and three caretakers were waiting for us. We were there about a quarter of eight, and Frank Boykin, with a hat turned up in front that made him look very much like the Napoleon quickly assumed us to our stations. He made good his promise and allowed

Every Beat For Bankhead

The movement initiated by Senator Black to put every beat in the State in the Bankhead column in the May primary is bearing fruit, although Senator Bankhead, under the leadership of the Republican Party, has exerted every effort to assure fair treatment to them and other ship operators who have been the innocent victims of circumstances brought about by unscrupulous persons who profited in large amounts from the Bankhead plan.

He secured appointments on Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, Patents Committee, and Public Buildings and Grounds Committee. He felt he could be of great assistance to our Port and State Docks as a member of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee. The first two committees have been very active and have taken a great deal of his time.

He has been an "ambassador of good will" and has scores of personal friends in each House. On his twelfth legislative day, he was elected Speaker of the House. He has been very attentive to his legislative duties and votes of all major measures as evidenced by roll call records.

He has introduced in the House one of the most far-reaching pieces of legislation in the history of the United States. Hearings will be held on this bill and it is destined, in the Congressman's opinion, to be one of the greatest boons to workers.

Here's What The People Write About Frank Boykin's Service

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
Washington

January 23, 1936.

Hon. Frank W. Boykin,
House of Representatives,
Dear Congressman Boykin:

It was rightly kind of you to write me the nice letter you did under date of January 8, and I appreciate it so much that I am taking the liberty of passing it on to both Secretary Wallace and Administrator Davis so that they can see what a true friend of the farmer and of our Department you are.

I do hope that Congress will soon frame a new program that will be even better than the old one, and one which will permit us to render you and our other congressional friends the same hearty cooperation in the future that we have tried to extend in the past.

With kindest, personal regards and again thanking you for your letter and your offer of cooperation, I am,

Sincerely yours,
JULIAN N. PRIANT,
Special Assistant to the Secretary.

WM. M. COLMER,
Sixth District Mississippi
CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Washington, D. C.

April 13, 1936.

Mr. R. V. Taylor,
Mobile, Alabama.

Dear Mr. Taylor:

It is my information that you are interested in my colleague and personal friend, the Honorable Frank W. Boykin.

I am very happy to have an opportunity to give expression to the very high esteem in which I hold the Congressman from your district. In view of the fact that I live only forty miles from Mobile, it was natural that Frank and I should be thrown together after he came to Washington. Moreover, I was interested to observe what type of man the people of that district would send up here to succeed my warm personal friend, the very able gentleman who so long represented that district, the Honorable John McDuffie. I have not been disappointed in Judge McDuffie's successor.

Frank Boykin is one of the most active of the 435 members of the lower House. He is a human dynamo. Many of us wonder how he can keep up under the strain and stress under which he labors for some fifteen or sixteen hours a day. I have never observed in my tenure in Congress a man who was more diligent in trying to accomplish something for his people and more anxious to get industries and legislation for their welfare.

While I have no desire to in any wise interfere with the inalienable right of the people of your district to select their own Representative without outside interference, nevertheless, looking at it from an unbiased standpoint, it appears to me that the people of your district would be going themselves a grave injustice to make a change at this time. The longer a man serves in Congress, due to the rule of seniority that prevails here, the better qualified he becomes to serve his people. Moreover, I have always understood that we Southerners respected the old Democratic custom of giving a second term to a new member even without opposition.

Thanking you for the privilege of giving me an opportunity to record my appreciation of my colleague and your Congressman, I am,

Cordially and sincerely yours,
BILL COLMER.

W. D. McPARRLANE,

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Washington, D. C.

April 11, 1936.

Mr. R. V. Taylor,
City of Mobile,
Mobile, Alabama.

Dear Mr. Taylor:

Just a little note to let you know what I think of Congressman Frank W. Boykin.

While Mr. Boykin is considered a new Member, he has already shown by his great personality and by his ability to mix and mingle with the Members, that he knows how to get things done. He showed this ability right off by securing some of the best committee assignments—Merchant Marine and Fisheries, Public Buildings and Grounds, and Patents—and through his help and cooperation he has been active in getting projects approved for his district.

He has offered legislation embodying the Deane Plan which many Members believe, if enacted, would go a long way toward quickly remedying our economic situation and preventing future depressions. Your Congressman has not only been active in retaining the present status of CCC Camps, but has worked hard in securing passage of the Soldiers' Bonus and many other pieces of progressive legislation enacted by this Congress. The people of Alabama made no mistake in sending Frank W. Boykin to Congress.

Sincerely,
W. D. McPARRLANE.

Hon. R. V. Taylor,
Member, Board of Commissioners,
Mobile, Alabama.

Dear Mr. Taylor:

I desire to thank you for your letter of April 8th.

I have had the pleasure of knowing Congressman Boykin ever since he came to Congress as successor to Judge McDuffie. Mr. Boykin is one of the most active men in the House of Representatives. He has a pleasant and forceful personality, and the people of the First Congressional District of Alabama are fortunate indeed in having him represent them. It so happens that Mr. Boykin and I are members of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, and in this way I have had the pleasure of becoming closely associated with him. He has made many friends among the members with whom he has served and that means a great deal to the people of his district.

I sincerely hope that we will both be here when the roll is called at the beginning of the next Congress.

Sincerely yours,
J. J. MANSFIELD.

Dear Mr. Taylor:

Honorable Frank W. Boykin serves on my committee and he is diligent, active, faithful and industrious. He is zealous in his efforts to save our merchant marine and restore our fisheries. He is keenly alive to all matters within the jurisdiction of the committee, which includes Panama Canal legislation, Coast Guard and Coast and Geodetic Survey.

I regard Mr. Boykin as peculiarly fitted for his duties here. He has already shown that he is possessed of unusual ability, and that great things may be expected of him.

It is difficult to express adequately my high regard for Mr. Boykin's splendid qualities.

Yours very sincerely,

April 10, 1936.

Hon. R. V. Taylor,
Board of Commissioners,

Dear Mr. Taylor:

I am in receipt of your letter.

As you know, my friend who has come to Washington in recent years has made a finer impression than Frank W. Boykin. He is respected for his ability and industry, and at the same time, through his unusual personality, he has been able to make many friends.

In handling legislation affecting agriculture, I have appreciated the wholehearted and intelligent support which he has given, and I have great confidence in his judgment in matters of legislation.

It is a general judgment here that Representative Boykin is at the beginning of a fine career of usefulness in the House of Representatives.

With best wishes, I am,

Cordially yours,
MARVIN JONES.

Mr. R. V. Taylor,

Dear Mr. Taylor:

It has just been called to my attention that my friend, Honorable Frank W. Boykin, has opposition in his race for Congress, and this information certainly came as a distinct surprise.

I had never known Mr. Boykin until he entered the Seventy-Fourth Congress, but since that time I have had an opportunity to know him intimately and to enjoy daily contacts with him. I think he has made an enviable record during the short period of time that he has served as your representative, and I cannot understand why anyone would hesitate to give him a vote of endorsement. He has worked faithfully and diligently in behalf of his district, and has really accomplished constructive results.

I have never known a man who is more imbued with the genuine spirit of service than Mr. Boykin. I sincerely hope that the people in his district will give him the endorsement he so richly deserves.

Sincerely yours,
HENRY PEARSON.

Hon. R. V. Taylor,

Dear Mr. Taylor:

I am in receipt of your letter of the 8th concerning my good friend and colleague, Hon. Frank W. Boykin.

Please be advised that his pleasing personality, fine, gentlemanly bearing and deep insight into national affairs has caused him to win the friendship of everyone with whom he comes in contact. In my judgment, you have sent a wonderful man to Congress and as you know precedence goes here, it seems to me you would serve your city and your district well to continue Mr. Boykin's services in Congress.

I am very fond of every Member of the Alabama delegation save one. I ought to be fond of Alabama because my wife was raised on a little farm out in Blount County, 38 miles north of Birmingham.

If you should come Texas way during next summer, we will be mighty glad to show you one of the biggest and best Centennials the world has ever seen.

With regards and best wishes, I am,

Truly yours,

April 13, 1936.

Mr. R. V. Taylor,
Mobile, Alabama.

Dear Mr. Taylor:

Referring to your letter of the 8th instant regarding Honorable Frank W. Boykin, permit me to say that I am in daily contact with Congressman Boykin and I can unhesitatingly say that he is not only highly regarded by all of his colleagues, but that he is also one of the hardest working and most capable Congressmen we have in the House.

I have also had heads of the various departments here speak about Congressman Boykin in the highest terms and I doubt very much if there is a single representative in the House who has been more alive to the needs of his district and state, as well as more effective and successful than Congressman Boykin.

I am delighted in writing this testimonial and feel that Congressman Boykin's district would make a very serious mistake if it did not return him to Congress by an overwhelming majority.

With all good wishes to you,

Sincerely,
JOHN H. TOLAN.

My dear Frank:

I want to thank you for your wonderful letter of April 3rd with reference to my work here in Congress. It is an inspiration to receive such an endorsement from one who has worked so valiantly in rendering the same type of service mentioned in your letter and I know of no more thrifty workers since that inclusion in office than Frank W. Boykin and I hasten to pay tribute to the manner in which you have consistently fought for the very best things for your district, state and nation.

With kindest personal regards and best wishes, I am,

Sincerely your friend,

Honorable Frank W. Boykin,

Dear Mr. Boykin:

Due to the hustle and bustle of our regretful departure, I feel that I did not adequately express to you my appreciation for the most enjoyable time we recently spent in your city and at your hunting lodge at McInosh. I am taking this opportunity to again thank you, your gracious wife, your fine brothers and the many other public-spirited citizens of the old First District of Alabama for the finest hunting trip I ever experienced. In saying this I am quite sure that I am expressing the feelings of each and every member of our party. I have hunted in some of the best deer and turkey sections of the South, but I have never seen anything to compare with the amount of game on your reserve.

I want to also say that I was greatly impressed with the many wonderful natural resources of your section which are as yet undeveloped. I am absolutely sure that your boundless energy, coupled with your intimate knowledge of the needs of your district and your unquestioned ability to really things done, will mean for Southern Alabama the dawn of a far greater day than she has yet known. I also feel that the voters of your district will be guilty of a grievous error if they do not draft you to serve in Congress just as long as you find it possible to represent them in that most important body.

Trusting to see you soon in Washington, and with kindest regards to you, your family and all our friends down in Old Alabama, I am,

Sincerely your friend,
WILSON H. SOUTH.

My dear Mr. Taylor:

Your letter in reference to Congressman Frank W. Boykin received.

As you know, Mr. Boykin is serving his first term in Congress, and he is one of the most active and hardest workers we have. He has unlimited energy, has legitimized himself with the officials in all of the departments, and never tires of working in the interest of his district, as well as having shown a broad grasp for national legislation. Mr. Boykin will, in my opinion, become one of the outstanding men here as he gains seniority.

When a district gets a good Congressman, it is a tremendous mistake to swap him off, for his influence and usefulness grows as a matter of seniority.

Mr. Boykin is a splendid mixer and makes friends rapidly and is loyal to the party. As a native Alabamian, it is with pleasure I can say this in his behalf.

Sincerely yours,
O. H. CROSS.

My dear Frank:

I want to express my genuine appreciation for the active efforts you exerted in the passage of the bill introduced by me which provides for the immediate cash payment in full of the adjusted service certificates.

Ordinarily, a new member feels his way here for a term or so before getting into the full swing of things, but that certainly was not the way you did it. I have for you and other interested step in and start hitting the ball with such a high batting average as you have.

I felt that I wanted to give this expression to you as the author of this bill which will mean so much to the World War Veterans and their families.

With the kindest regards, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Member of Congress,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Boykin:

I wish to thank you for the aggressive manner in which you have served the farmers of this country during the short time you have been in Washington. It is most unusual for a new Congressman who has only been on the job for a month or two to have any influence and to be able to put things over. However, you have been an exception to the rule, and from all reports you are serving like an old-timer.

I have noted with a great deal of pleasure that you voted for every New Deal bill sponsored by the American Farm Bureau and by Secretary Wallace. We especially wish to thank you for having seen loan blanks sent to our county, so as to help our distressed farmers receive a government crop loan.

Your hard work for the cold storage plant in our county should always be remembered by our farmers, for this plant will prove very beneficial to our truck growers and livestock producers.

I have read with a great deal of pleasure a letter under date of January 23rd from Mr. Julian N. Prient, special assistant to Secretary Wallace, which stated that you were a true friend of the farmers and of the Department of Agriculture.

Assuring you that our farmers greatly appreciate your friendship and the wonderful way you are representing them, true to your promises, I am,

Yours very truly,
A. B. PLATT, Secretary,
Mobile County Exchange.

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Washington, D. C.

March 21, 1936.

Hon. Frank W. Boykin,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

My dear Colleague:

By authority vested in me through the action of the mass meeting of the House of Representatives of the 74th Congress, in the Caucus Room of the Old House Building on the morning of March 20, 1936, I hereby appoint you a member of the committee to further the purpose of said mass meeting.

This purpose is to request the rescinding of the executive order which would, on April 1st, reduce the number of CCC camps in the United States from 2,158 to 1,709, and on July 1st to 1,456, and to cause to be done those things which are necessary to hold the CCC camps at the present figure of 2,158 through the fiscal year of 1937.

Allow me to take this opportunity to thank you and commend you for your splendid cooperation and your tireless efforts and your valuable assistance given me in this fight.

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) JACK NICHOLS, Chairman.

me to go with old Uncle Israel Reed.

Slowly the old Negro went through the woods with long loping steps that took us down the little pathway toward a place where he had heard two farmers try to uproot the night before. "He went along the little path until he came to a small sapling, which he had blazed as a marker. When he saw it, he whispered to me to go more quietly, and we turned off an unthoughted deeper into the swamp until we came to a large cypress tree. There we sat down with our backs to all was silent in the swamp as we sat waiting for daylight. The first warning of dawn was the low cry of a whippoorwill. Then a red-bird whistled, and after that a moment later a barred owl called his whoo-who-who-who. If a must have waked the rooster, for in answer to the owl there thundered through the swamp the "gl-oble-oble-oble-oble" of a giant turkey.

Then for a time Uncle Israel and I sat waiting. And at last he told me of the hundreds of turkeys that had been killed on the preserve, and the cry of a whippoorwill. Then a red-bird whistled, and after that a moment later a barred owl called his whoo-who-who-who. If a must have waked the rooster, for in answer to the owl there thundered through the swamp the "gl-oble-oble-oble-oble" of a giant turkey.

At lunch that day Frank Boykin had as our particular guest the old hunter. "Well," the hunter said, "I reckon as how I take my share of bear in my day. I've killed 169, and I've had some fine calls, but I reckon as how I can go out and kill some more if I please."

"The way to kill bear is to have bear dogs. You can't do it right without the right kind of dogs. What you do is get some especially big strong hunting dogs. You take their puppies, and you worry 'em with a bear hide. You get 'em when they're small, if it is, and when they're large enough you train 'em to hide through the woods and teach 'em to chase it."

"I taught my hounds like this. I found a bear in a tree and I shot him through one of his arms and broke the bone, when he fell down I shot him through his other arm and broke the bone. Then I shot his jaw bone off. When I took the dogs in and sicked 'em on the bear they caught him and killed him. I pelted 'em. I cut up the bear and gave 'em some of the meat. I let 'em know they'd done a great thing."

"After that there wasn't anything to it. I just turned 'em loose and they kept going in the canebreak until they hit a trail. And they ran it until they tired the bear and I came up and killed him or he returned around to fight and they killed him."

"The most exciting time I ever had with bears was one day in that old hollow log that's still down there by the pond. I was out in the canebreak when a terrible thunder storm came up. I ran in the log, and was crawling back inside to keep dry when I saw a male bear back inside. I turned around to get out, and when I got turned around I saw female bear just coming in the hollow end of the log. Now, gentlemen, I don't say that I was scared, but I don't deny that I was a little worried. But I took aim at that she-bear, and I shot. She dropped dead, and I rushed out of that log, crawling over her as I went."

"You gentlemen asked me whether or not bears are increasing or decreasing on this preserve. I think they're increasing. I haven't killed any now in several years and nobody else is killing 'em especially in 'em. That means that they're breeding and nobody's bothering 'em. We're seeing more bear tracks in the swamp now than we've seen in a lot of years."

"Mrs. Boykin was with us, and she was charming; and Frank, Jr., was there with a friend named Jack Cleveland and they were all splendid boys. And Frank's brothers hunted with us and were great sportsmen and perfect assistant hosts."

"When one dislikes a man upon first meeting him, a frequent cause for that dislike is the feeling that the man is untruthful and that probably was why I disliked Frank Boykin that night. I first met him in Mobile. I simply could not believe that any person could be so quick in his friendships, so genuine in his good feeling for people about him. I know better now. I know that there is justification for Frank Boykin's being one of the best-known and best-loved men in South Alabama."

patents and copyright laws to the end that the public may be more beneficially served. The White House had an interest in putting new thinking men on this committee and this was a further tribute to Boykin in securing the assignment.

In a recent speech, Boykin said he did not come to Washington for "pleasure and profit." His record there, on the other hand, and no higher tribute could be paid to this man whose philosophy revolves around the slogan—EVERYTHING IS MADE FOR LOVE.

Byrnes Amendment Backed By Boykin

Congressman Frank W. Boykin was an active supporter of the Byrnes amendment to the deficiency appropriations bill, making continuation of the 42-cent cotton loan mandatory.

Boykin's Opponent

was treated by the people at the Linden rally. Capt. Canterbury said that when Bunbury got up to speak that the people started leaving and that the Mobile Insurance man was left on the stand alone.

Bunbury was speaking when Boykin arrived. He sat down and everybody he mentioned from Mobile and talked mostly about the "so-called" White fallacy at length about the Holcombes, Colonel Taylor and the Dauphin Island Bridge; also said he did not believe in abled-bodied excessive motor vehicle regulations; although the Veterans Bureau records show that he is and has been drawing $50.00 per month for years.

Bunbury seemed obsessed with the idea that everybody was crooked, even Messrs. Congressman Wright Patman, a life-long friend of the ex-convict man, or being crooked because he is a friend of Mr. Boykin's.

Hon. Geo. Peggam, an ex-convict man, Legionnaire and one of the most prominent attorneys in the State, introduced Congressman Boykin as one of the outstanding men in the State, who had done more in less time, than any man who has ever been in Congress. Mr. Peggam also letters of endorsement of Mr. Boykin from Congressman Patman, J. L. Speaker Byrnes and others; also letters from Geo. M. Harrison, Grand Juror of the Grand Jurisdiction of the Clerks of the Railroad and Steamship Commission, Express and Station Employees' Union on May 5 stating that it is most important that Boykin be given in drafting and working for the substitute legislation for the AAA, which has and will mean so much to the farming people. Also letters stating, if it had not been for Congressman Boykin's work and cooperation, we would have lost the AAA camps all over the United States.

Congressman Boykin spoke for about an hour without calling Bunbury's name and had with him the records of all the projects he had helped secure for the First District of Alabama and the State; also explained about the Jackson Bridge and Dauphin Island Bridge matter. Bunbury said the Jackson Bridge matter was practically settled; that if FWA were allotted other funds, the people of the First District would Dauphin Island that would not cost the Tax Payers one cent.

After Mr. Boykin had closed, Mr. Bunbury attempted to answer him, but the audience left him standing mute evidence of their satisfaction of Congressman Boykin's viewpoint.

Judge A. L. Hasty then accompanied Mr. Boykin through the best of the district, shaking hands with his many friends. Judge Hasty says that in his opinion Marengo will give Mr. Boykin a landslide.

And did the money come in well just ask any person living in the Mobile district how much in prospect as long as Frank W. Boykin is in congress, the people have faith that the district will develop and progress.

Here's what the various leaders in the counties have to say about the congressional situation: CHOCOTAW: Frank W. Boykin will get 95 per cent of the entire vote cast on May 5. Farmers and everybody have nothing but praise for Boykin, wonderful work in Washington.

MONROE: A veritable landslide is predicted for Frank W. Boykin on May 5. He will poll the largest vote ever cast for a candidate for Congress in this county in Washington.

WASHINGTON: All Washington county is for Frank W. Boykin. We don't even know anybody else in the race here. We will lose only a few scattered votes.

WILCOX: "There is not anybody in the race here but Frank W. Boykin. He has endorsed himself to the hearts of every voter in the county as the one man who can be depended on to work for all the people in congress."

MARENGO: Our county will go 95 per cent for Frank W. Boykin. Here is a striking example of how he goes about his campaign business as congressman in Washington - for yourself you everybody on board. He has and admires Frank W. Boykin.
