Marching pets plan a park foray, all the Do Dah Day

It's time to parade your pets again, do dah, do dah.

Yes, that annual spring festival known as Do Dah Day will kick off tomorrow at 11:01 a.m. with a parade featuring gaily dressed dogs, cats and people raising money for the Metro Humane Shelter and the Birmingham Humane Society.

The parade, which starts at Highland Golf Course, will wind its way along Highland Avenue to Caldwell Park, where festivalgoers will be treated to an afternoon of music by Sonia Dada, Brother Cane and Rick Carter and the Loveland Orchestra.

Proceeds from T-shirt sales, parade entry fees and concessions generate funds for the local humane societies.

Anyone interested in participating in the parade should register beginning at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Highland Golf Course. Registration is $1 to walk a pet or $5 to enter a float.

Do Dah Day Inc., a nonprofit all-volunteer organization, is supported this year by Birmingham Coca-Cola, Birmingham Budweiser, WTTO-21 and WAPI (95 FM).
