From the New York World.
A Dollar!
What is a dollar? Where is it defined? What does the term imply? What law prescribes its constituent parts and necessary form? What were the circumstances of the origin of the word in our business, political, legislative, or legal life? In the colonies our ancestors must have brought and employed the monetary units of England, which were pounds, shillings, and pence, and when was the change made to dollars, as monetary units of our own value? At one period the cost and fees in courts must have been taxed in English money; why and when was it ordered that this practice be discontinued? As the purity and identity of the stream may be determined by examination of the fountain, so the question of the power of Congress to make a piece of paper a "dollar" by impressing thereon certain words, symbols, and signatures, and (what is worse) compel citizens to accept as such, and in payment for a real gold or silver dollar, may be satisfactorily decided in the popular mind by answering the series of questions we ask.

The term "dollar" is said to be of German derivation from "thaler," but on that one need not pause. It is certainly not English or British, and we did not inherit it from the country which first fabricated so much of our legislation.

In July, 1785, the term first appears in the legislation of the Congress of the Confederation, which enacted that the money unit of the U. S. States should "be one dollar," and a year later, legislating for a mint, it said that the money of account should correspond with the coin established by law.

In the body of the Constitution the term appears but once, and then on imposing a tax "not exceeding ten dollars for each person" till 1808 on imported Africans. To what did the Constitution then refer by a dollar—a coined dollar or a paper dollar?

The term again occurs in the seventh amendment, which in common law suits preserves trial by jury where "the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars." What kind of a dollar was there referred to? Could it be twenty paper dollars, not equal in value to twenty copper cents? Was the standard of jury trial to be left to the will of Congress to make anything it pleased a dollar?

The Congress of the Constitution defined a dollar on April 2, 1792, in the first law to establish a mint by prescribing the coins to be made therein as gold eagles, half eagles, quarter eagles; the eagle, "to be of the value of ten dollars," and silver dollars, half dollars, quarter dollars, and tenth dollars, and copper cents and half cents. This law prescribed the weight and fineness of these gold and silver coins on the basis of the "Spanish milled dollar as the same is now current," and the relation of gold to silver. This was Jefferson's idea, and from that day to 1873 Congress never changed or diminished the real intrinsic value of the gold or silver dollar of the Constitution, whatever may have happened to the silver dollar. The relation of gold to silver has changed from 1 to 15 till it is now 1 to 16, and therefore the doubled standard was abandoned by Congress February 12, 1873, and gold alone adopted. But there has been, nevertheless, from 1792 to 1873, no steady fixed value of our money unit, which is a dollar.

This law of 1873 declares that our unit of value shall be a one dollar gold coin piece, which, at the standard weight, shall be 25.8 grains (or 23.22 grains of pure gold, which shall be a legal tender at their nominal value of one dollar, when not by use reduced below the mint tolerance, and when so reduced, then for a proportional value. Silver coins being debased, are only a legal tender up to five dollars, and here our gold dollar of the Constitution is not debased, but our silver dollar is, and as a punishment, it is not a legal tender except for a small amount. What absurdity to thus prohibit the silver dollar and exalt the paper dollar to an equality with our gold dollar!

We wish our shipplaster friends who vindicate the legal tender decision of the Supreme Court, who need to bring the pound sterling of England into true relation with our dollar, and who resist specie payment and Democratic hard money, would meditate on these things.

GRAPE CUTTINGS.—The length of grape cuttings says the New York Tribune is not a matter of much moment, but in a general way it may be said that it is best to cut them with two or three buds. If the internodes, that is the space between the buds, are about nine or ten inches, use but two, cutting below the bottom eye, and a short distance above the upper one. When the buds are close together use three or even four on the cuttings. In the spring set out in rows, tramp the soil at the bottom very hard, and allowing the top bud to be about on a level with the surrounding surface. It is a great mistake to have one's cuttings sticking up in the air at least half their length. Make the soil rich before planting, and a good strong growth will be the result of the first year. One-year-old vines are the best for planting out, the chances of success diminishing with each succeeding year's growth. A strong, thrifty one-year-old vine is, in our opinion worth twice as much as the older and stronger specimen.

CULTIVATE GOOD SENSE.—Do not be above your business. He who turns up his nose at work, quarrels with bread and butter. He is a poor smith who is afraid of his own sparks; there's some discomfort in all trades, except chimney sweeping. If sailors give up going to sea because of the wet; if bakers left off baking because it is hot work; if plowmen would not plow because of cold, and tailors would not make our clothes for fear of pricking their fingers, what a pass we should come to. Nonsense! my fellow, there's no shame about any calling. Don't be afraid of soiling your hands, there is plenty of soap to be had. All trades are good to traders. Lucifer matches pay well if you sell enough of them. You cannot get honey if you are frightened at bees, nor plant corn if you are afraid of getting and on your boots. When bars of iron melt under the south wind; when you can dig the fields with tooth picks; blow ships along with fans; mow the crops with lavender water, and grow plump-cakes in flower pots, there will be a fine time for dandies; but until the millennium, comes we shall have a deal to put up with.

BEN FRANKLIN'S BREECHES.—The Pennsylvania Gazette, of February 23d, 1773, has this quaint advertisement: "Stolen—B. Franklin's new seated breeches.—Stolen on the 15th inst., by one William Lloyd, out of the house of Benjamin Franklin, a half-worn Sagathoe Coat, lined with Silk, four fine Homespun Shirts, a fine Holland Shirt, pulled at the hands and bosom, a pair of black broadcloth breeches, new seated and lined with leather, two pair of ground worsted Stockings, one of a dark color, and the other of a lightish blue, a coarse Cambric handkerchief, marked with an F in red silk, a new pair of Calf Skin Shoes, a Boy's Custor Hat, and sundry other Things.

N. B.—The said Lloyd pretends to understand Latin and Greek, and has been a School-master; He is an Irishman about 30 Years of Age, tall and slim. Had on a lightish colored Great Coat, red Jacket, a pair of Black Silk breeches, an old felt hat too little for him, and sewed on the side of the Crown with white Thread, and an old dark-colored Wig; but perhaps may wear some of the clothes above mentioned.

Whoever secures the said Thief so that he may be brought to Justice, shall have Thirty Shillings reward and reasonable charges paid by B. FRANKLIN.

Philadelphia, Feb. 22, 1773.

SEVERAL OF A MIND.—William B. Astor has walked Broadway for three score years without indicating any sympathy with mankind. If you wish to make a trial, call at the office in Prince Street. It is well understood that clarity is not tolerated there. Mr. Astor's property enabled him, fifty years ago to pay a tax of $45,000, and at present he pays about $65,000, which is a small sum in proportion to his immense estate. When he was a boy his father's property was worth about $1,000,000. The old gentleman died in 1848, leaving $200,000, and the estate has since more than doubled since that time. Six hundred houses acknowledge Astor as landlord; but with all his wealth, why, try him for charity! Thirty thousand women have been driven by poverty into prostitution during the time that Astor's property has thus grown into a colossal pile, and now, while poverty grinds the masses more bitterly than ever, the gold lion mountain increases still more rapidly under its owner's management. What a contrast to behold $200,000,000 in the hands of an old man just on the verge of the grave, while the direst poverty, reaching even to starvation, is the lot of thousands. —Cor. Bowler's Democrat.

There is a great deal of energy thrown away in many religious communities upon the errors or shortcomings of other religious denominations. This wasteful and unworthy manifestation of petty spirit, as unchristian as it is mischievous, is in a violent condemnation, which quite overlooks the fact that the persons against whom their peevish and petulant tirades are leveled, and who could alone be benefited by them, if there were any benefit to be derived from them at all—are precisely those who would be the last to place themselves under their influence.

Many who would shrink with horror from the idea of rejecting Christ altogether, will yet speak and act as if they were at liberty to set up for themselves an eclectic Christianity; separating the essential from the superfluous portions of Christ's teachings; deciding for themselves how much is permanent and necessary for all men, and how much is temporary and designed only for a particular age and people. Yet if Christ is indeed God manifest in the flesh, it is surely no less impious to attempt to improve his teaching, than to reject it altogether. Nay, in one respect it is more so; for it is to acknowledge a doctrine as the revelation of God, and at the same time to proclaim that it is inferior to the wisdom of man.—Michael.
