mand and to threaten, as a means of compelling a nomination in his favor, which he should receive as a matter of grace, but at the moment he should be turned down and tabooed as an enemy to the common weal. A party is weak in its organization, and powerless of united action and discipline to win victories, that suffers individualism in its nominations.

to with deep interest, and cannot fail, in due time, to bring forth abundant fruit. His sermon of Monday night was one marked power and rare beauty, and showed him to be a workman who needeth not to be ashamed of his ministry. If such preaching cannot awaken the conscience of men, harsh invective will prove still less effectual in accomplishing that object.

We doubt if the editor of the Advertiser ever penned a more truthful sentence than the following, which has the right ring to it, and which should be the motto of every respectable paper in the land. He says: "I have no business to put forward my opinions, prejudices, or sentiments, mistakes widely the true mission of Journalism. And the man who attempts to make that sort of vehicle of his own must first feel persuaded that his own opinions are the only ones which will protect the public and his own precepts the only salvation of the Commonwealth. The guidance of a man of that sort is always to be dreaded, because no one can guess to what it may ultimately conduct. He thinks the paper in the men and not the men in the paper. He is too much of a person, and too personal instead of impersonal, as it should be to have its due weight and influence."

At Abilene, where he was reared and resided until Dec. 1872, at which time he came to Jefferson, Texas, to seek his fortune in this rising State—he his "heart beating with high hope" that his climate might physically invigorate him, and his health for many years having been feeble, he said, ah! how delusive are our fondest dreams!—he a spoiler—who "loves a shining mark"—chose him for a victim, cutting short all fancied themes of youth and early manhood. His disease was dropsy, superinduced by enlargement of the spleen, from which he had long been a sufferer. Having been a member of the Baptist church for ten years, his afflictions were sanctified. In "patience he possessed his soul," and meeting death with composure, "breathed his life out" so sweetly, it was difficult to discern the departure of the "spirit unto God who gave it."

CITY ITEMS.

The Piano noticed in our paper two weeks ago, is still offered for sale cheap, and is in good order.

The DOLLAR STORE is now opening a large assortment of new Spring Goods.

Dr. E. V. Culver, with his family, has been spending a few days in the city, the guest of Dr. A. L. Graves.

The Rev. Dr. L. F. W. Andrews, of Georgia, preached at Murphree's Hall on Friday night last, and also on Sunday.

We are glad to see our little friend "David," who was always a favorite with the citizens of Troy, again with Alderman Solonson.

Watch movements, re-gilt, and cases plated to look as well as solid gold, by W. A. CREWS.

The City Marshal, with his street gang, is busily engaged in repairing the damage done to the public high-ways and sidewalks by the late storm.

Our new barber, Cato, seems to have increased his custom since he crossed the Square to the old post office, where he now holds forth daily in the practice of the tonsorial art.

Ex-Alderman R. J. Higgins has purchased the ruins of the old building in the rear of our former office, which fell during the late storm, and proposes to remove the material to his residence, and there put up a stable.

The DOLLAR STORE is selling Spring Goods at the very lowest prices.

Planters and country merchants will do well to read the advertisement of Messrs. J. F. Stow & Co., of Montgomery, who are closing out their entire stock of General Hardware at the very lowest panic prices. Give them a trial.

Want of space compels us to postpone a notice of the Address of the State Democratic Conservative Committee, which can be found on the first page of this issue, and which every true citizen of Pike County should carefully and thoughtfully read.

Solid Gold Rings and Jewelry made to order, and work warranted, by CREWS.

The pupils of Miss Ida Hurley's music class gave a public rehearsal at the College on last Friday night, which was largely attended by the parents and friends of the young ladies, who seemed to enjoy the happy occasion in the best manner.

Mr. Sid. Freeman, formerly of this city, has left Eagle Springs, Texas, and is now farming at Milford, Ellis county, in the same State. He writes in very flattering terms of that section, as the best farming country he ever saw, the soil being adapted to all kinds of grain.

The DOLLAR STORE offers Boots, Shoes and Fancy Articles at regular panic prices.

Our thanks are due one of the most estimable young ladies of Troy, for a beautiful bouquet of rare flowers, in the cultivation of which, as in the cultivation of the higher accomplishments of female education and character, she is eminently successful. Later, another bouquet from a worthy representative of "Flora."

A writer in the Greenville South Atlantic nominates the Hon. John P. Hubbard, of this city, ex-Speaker of the House of Representatives, as a suitable candidate for Lieutenant Governor of Alabama. But we believe that gentleman is not a candidate for any office at this time.

W. A. CREWS has had fifteen years experience in repairing Watches and Clocks.

Mr. Wm. Rowe, of this county, well known as a practical cotton-press manufacturer, has applied for a patent, through Messrs. Parks & Hubbard of this city, for an improved cotton press which he has lately invented, and for which he claims several, superior advantages over the presses now in general use.

Troy can now boast of a wholesale house, as can be seen by reference to the advertisement of Barnett's wholesale liquor, tobacco and sugar establishment, which has opened, with a full stock, at the old stand of Crawford, Jernigan & Copeland, and solicits the patronage of planters and country merchants, to whom good terms are offered.

The DOLLAR STORE is always prepared to show goods to all visitors, even if they do not buy.

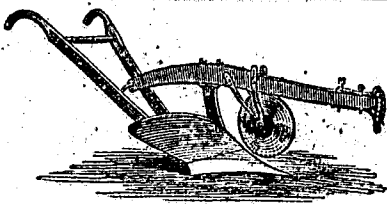

Dr. H. St. George Douglas, who disappeared from the jail here one night some two weeks ago, is now with his family, near Geneva, and is reported to be in a frame of mind that leads him to wish that the friends who so kindly liberated him from prison, and put him on his homeward way, had hung him to a tree, and thus ended his disgraceful career.

We were glad to see Mr. E. S. Whaley in town on Friday last week, although he is still on crutches. It will be remembered that he was badly injured in the left leg and knee during the month of Jan. last, from the effects of which he will be somewhat crippled for life. This is a matter of deep regret, as Mr. Whaley is one of the most industrious and substantial planters in Pike County.

Watches accurately adjusted in position and to the hour, by W. A. CREWS, Troy.

The people of this section, the past two weeks, have found the great mill department of the Conecuh Steam Works of great service to them, in the absence of so many water mills. The turning and enterprising proprietor, Mr. Joseph Mincheimer, is extending his business, having recently purchased Chapman's saw-mill, which he proposes to run, in connection with his planing mill, and furnish dressed lumber of good quality.

Grange Column.

"PATRONS, PLOW DEEP!"

That man who by the Plow would Thrive, Himself must either BOLD or Drive.

Items For Granges.

A contemporary says: "This is the month to commence planting most of your vegetables. Next month will be the time to commence sending them in to the newspaper editors."

Hon. W. C. McNeese, District Deputy, is constantly moving about, seeking where he may establish a Grange. He has recently operated successfully in Barbour county, where he has organized several new Granges.

Mr. C. M. McRae has been elected Chaplain, Mr. Duncan McRae, Assistant Steward, and Miss Jane McRae, Flora, of the Farmers' Academy Grange in Barbour county, and will prove efficient and faithful officials.

We offer as a premium to the Granger who shall bring us in the largest number of subscribers, old or new, with the cash, before the first of May next, a handsome gold Grange Badge. There is no limit to the number required; three or twenty, the highest will take the Badge.

Mr. Watson Walker, at Shorter's Station, on the Western railroad of Alabama, twenty-three miles from Montgomery, will make this year one thousand bushels of small grain. He has planted four hundred acres in rust-proof oats, now knee high. He has not a seed of cotton in the ground.

The Talladega Watchtower notices a community that is deserving of the highest praise, and one which presents an example worthy of a more general imitation. It says: "The people of Clay county sow wheat and oats; they raise their own corn and pork; have plenty of cattle, milk, butter, eggs and poultry. They have not forgot how to weave jeans nor lost the music of the spinning wheel. They owe but little, have but very few mortgages, and are to-day among the most prosperous and independent people in Alabama. Population almost exclusively white and conservative."

The Clayton Courier talks encouragingly of the farming prospects in that section. It says: From all parts of the county, we hear that our farmers are actively and energetically engaged in arranging their fences and lands for the planting of their crops. Every one we see says there is more work being done up to this time than they have ever seen before in the early part of the year. There are more fences repaired, and the land put in better condition, than usual. Every one seems disposed to go ahead with a vim, and make enough provisions to bring them out of the "kinks" this year.

A Grange Burial.

We were not aware that the Granges had a burial service, but the Leavenworth Times, of March 9th says: The burial of a member of the Patrons of Husbandry with the honors of the Order that has come to our notice, took place day before yesterday in Kickapoo, when the remains of Henry Bolin were consigned to their last resting place with all the pomp and funeral pageant of the Granger burial service. Mr. Bolin was a prominent member and the attendance was very large, some 400 persons being present. The programme of the burial was about as follows: On leaving the residence of the deceased, the hearse which contained the remains was flanked on either side by three pall bearers, who walked with uncovered heads and regalia draped in mourning. Following the hearse came the relatives of the deceased, and next marched the Sisters of the Order, clad in full regalia. The Brothers came next, and following them the vast concourse of people, who had come from far and near to witness the ceremonies. The remains were first taken to the church, where a priest went through a service peculiar to the Catholic Church, of which the deceased was a member. When the exercises here had been concluded, the procession took up its march for the cemetery, where the Granger funeral rites were performed. The coffin was placed on supports directly over the open grave, and remained there till the impressive and interesting service was concluded. G. B. Coffin, Master of the Franklin Grange, conducted the ceremonies. When the brothers and sisters of the Grange of which the deceased was a member had assembled about the grave, the Master read a selection from the burial ritual, followed by a second selection by the Chaplain, and then the members repeated slowly and solemnly the Lord's prayer, closing with a beautiful and appropriate hymn. The brothers of the Order then stepped to the grave and threw into the opening several bouquets of flowers and evergreens. A short but powerful address was next delivered by the chaplain. While the coffin was being lowered, a beautiful and soul-inspiring hymn was sung, and during the singing the sisters showered bouquets of flowers upon the descending coffin until it reached the wooden box at the bottom of the grave. The Master then sprinkled a portion of dirt thrown from the grave over the coffin and the services closed with the solemn benediction of the Chaplain. Taken throughout, the ceremonies were very beautiful and impressive. This is the first burial of a Granger in the county, and if we are correctly informed, in the State, that is, with the ceremonies of the Order.

BLEED THROUGH

Some Mother's Son.
That is some mother's son I see
Reeling in drunkenness along;
Once the pride of her heart was he—
The burden of her happiest song.
When in his helpless infancy
She gently soothed him to his rest,
And sung her sweetest lullaby
With his wee head upon her breast;
And when he grew a prattling boy,
What pleasure to her heart he brought;
He was to her a living joy—
Mingled with every happy thought.
Ah! often would her bosom heave
With the bright visions of his mind,
As she would see him others leave
In honor's race far, far behind.
Proudly she'd walk beside him then,
Fond mother of a noble son;
Her youth would seem renewed again,
Her happiness but just begun.
Ah! hapless mother, how thy dreams
Have faded, like the twilight dim,
Into black darkness, where there gleams
No star of hope that shines for him.
Perhaps thy heart hath broke ere this,
To see thy brightest hope depart,
To have what should have brought but bliss
The keenest agony impart.
Perhaps thy weary head doth rest
Serenely in thy peaceful grave;
Folded the hands upon thy breast
That strove in vain thy boy to save.
'Twas better thus—ah! would it were,
For life could bring but misery;
The grieving sigh and falling tear
Would be all earth could give to thee.
I sometimes start at the dread thought
Flashes unbidden through my brain,
This bitter cup with anguish fraught
May yet be my sad lot to drain.
I gaze upon my baby boys,
And wonder wildly can it be
That they, the source of such sweet joys,
Shall ever bring such misery?
And the answer comes so dearly
From the bitter depths of human woe,
The men deep-dyed in villany
Were infants once as pure as snow!
Full well I know the human heart
When left alone will surely stray,
From paths of rectitude depart,
To tread sin's broad, fearful way.
Then, oh! my God, my helper be
My precious ones to train aright,
Early incline their hearts to Thee,
And make them holy in Thy sight.
'Tis all the safeguard they can have—
Thy spirit's sweet restraining power;
Then, oh! for them this boon I crave,
While now in life's young morning hour.
For rather, far, I'd give them back
In guileless youth to Heaven and Thee,
Than have them live this grace to lack,
And stray from paths of purity.
For, oh! how sweet had been the tears
Shed o'er her baby's peaceful grave,
Compared with those which passing years
Have caused that mother's cheek to lave!
For then among the angel band
A place her darling had been given;
And this had been the beck'ning hand
To lure her on from earth to Heaven.
E'en yet, Oh, Lord, Thy spirit give;
Thy wondrous voice may reach him yet,
Piecing his dull ear and bid him live,
And sin and misery forget.

Cure of the Craving for Stimulants.
Dr. Brunton, an English physician, has been writing to the British Messenger on the temptation to drunkenness caused by the craving for stimulants felt by some people. He furnishes prescriptions which he believes will overcome this craving and which are to be obtained by his readers at the nearest druggists. Here are two of them:
1st. Put a quarter of an ounce of sulphate of iron and half an ounce of magnesia in an ordinary quart bottle, and fill it with peppermint water. A wine-glassful to be taken three or four times a day. Instead of the peppermint water an infusion of dried peppermint may be used. It may be made stronger or weaker according to the taste of the patient, and be allowed to cool before it is added to the sulphate of iron and magnesia. A little gum-arabic or gum-tragacanth added to the mixture will keep the magnesia better suspended, but this may perfectly well be omitted. The bottle should be shaken before the dose is poured out.
2d. Take an ounce of quassia chips and pour over them as much cold water as will fill three quart bottles. Let them stand an hour and then strain. Add to the strained liquid six and a half fluid drachms of the solution of iron, sold under the name of "Liquor Ferri Perchloridi." Two tablespoonfuls or half a wine-glassful to be taken three or four times a day. The iron solution may be measured out with a teaspoon, one teaspoonful being equal to one fluid drachm; but teaspoons vary in size, and it is therefore better to use a glass measure, which may be bought at any chemist's. No doubt there are many cases in which chalybeate is indicated, but it may be questioned whether it would not be wiser of those who wish to try the plan to ask a medical man first. The value of such advice is indicated by the following remarks appended by Dr. Brunton to the recipes we have quoted.
"When the person's tongue is pale, flabby, and marked with the teeth at the edges, the second prescription may be found more useful than the first. When there is any tendency to flatulence the first should be taken a quarter of an hour before meals; and if either of them causes uneasiness when taken on an empty stomach, they should be used immediately after meals. In the presence of a robust habit florid complexion, the following prescription may be found more serviceable than either of the preceding. Add one ounce of bruised gentian root to one quart of boiling water. Let this stand four hours, then strain off the liquor, and add two drachms of carbonate of ammonia. A wine-glassful may be taken two or three times a day when craving comes on. It may be used by all who are addicted to the use of intoxicating drinks."
