WEDDED.

Some quick and bitter words we said,
And then we parted. How the sun Swam through a sultry sea of gray!
A chill fell on the summer day, Life's best and happiest hours were done.

How proud we went our separate ways;
And spoke no words and made no mourn.
She braided up her flowing hair,
That I had always called so fair, As though she scorned my loving tone.

And I matched her scorn with scorn, I hated her with all my heart, Until we chanced to meet one day, She raised her pretty head away, I saw two pleading tear-drops start,
And love was born.

Some fond, repenting words I said, She answered only with a sigh, But when I took her hands in mine A radiance shone, half-divine, Flooded the earth and filled the sky, Now we are wed.

It is said the best means to curb a fast young man is to "bride" him.

Humility is eldest born of virtue, and claims the birthright at the throne of Heaven.

How to become practically acquainted with the "rule of three." Live with your wife, mother, and mother-in-law.

Time may be reckoned as is passing, but never when it has gone by.

Our devil says that last Sunday he saw a boy with his first frock coat on and he says it was amusing to see how often that boy looked over his shoulder to see if the tails were right, and that he took out and put back his handkerchief about twice a minute.

It has been said "if thy neighbor wrong thee, buy each of his children a drum," but I say unto you if thy neighbor wrong thee organize a brass band, and let its place of practice be next door to his house.

He handled a gun carelessly, and put his angel plumage on, an obituary which appeared in a western period.

Nothing is more dangerous than an imprudent friend; better it is to have to deal with a prudent enemy.

An expensive wife makes a pensive husband.

Wise sayings often fall to the ground, kind words never do.

One of the chubby class of four-year-old Sunday school scholars, when talked to by his teacher about his sins and frailties of the body, was asked: "Well, my son, what have you besides this sinful body?" Quick as thought the little fellow responded: "A clean shirt and a nice new pair of breeches."

A GOOD EDUCATION.

This from Edward Everett:
"To read the English language well, to write with dispatch a neat, legible hand, and be master of the first four rules of arithmetic, so as to dispose of at once, with accuracy, every question of figures which comes up in practice—I call this a good education. And if you add the ability to write pure grammatical English, I regard it as an excellent education. These are the tools. You can do much with them, but you are helpless without them.
They are the foundation; and unless you begin with these, all your flash, attainments, a little geology, are unnecessary rubbish."

We wish the above were printed in letters of gold on the walls of every school-room, seminary, college and university, in the land—for it contains a great truth, too often lost sight of, too often treated with supercilious contempt. Mr. Everett was one of the most accomplished America has ever produced, and the peer of any abroad; yet he recognized how little was required for a good education, and how incomplete any education is without that little. There is a tendency now-days, in this country, and perhaps elsewhere, to cultivate the flowers of education at the expense for the stalk, and sacrifice the essentials of the sake of the non-essentials. A knowledge of ancient languages; of the higher departments of physical and mental science, is certainly desirable, and when there is the requisite taste and leisure for it, may be acquired with profit as well as pleasure. But thousands of scholars, male and female, are made to absorb "a little Latin and less Greek" before they have mastered half the difficulties for seen half the beauties of their mother tongue. Thousands are crammed with what Everett calls the "ologies and ophiologies" before they are thoroughly versed in arithmetic, and thousands more are loaded down with fanciful accomplishments before they have any accurate comprehension of the substantial. In many respects the education of the present day is a vast improvement upon that which prevailed fifty years ago, but in some respects it is decidedly inferior.
The superstructure of the educational edifice is more elaborate, but the foundations are weaker. We have met young gentlemen who were graduates of respectable institutions of learning, and yet were unable to write twenty sentences of unexceptionable English without a fearful amount of labor and perplexity. We have met young ladies who could chatter fluently in French, conjure sweet music from the piano, and thrill a song in what is supposed to be very choice Italian, and yet were almost ignorant of the history of their own land, to say nothing of any other. We have met both young gentlemen and young ladies who had grappled rhetoric, political economy, logic and geometry, whose reading was miserable and whose spelling was damnable. Fifty years ago the branches of the tree were not so broad and beautiful, but the roots were deeper and stronger.

A man who had been elected a major of militia, and who was not overburdened with brains, took it into his head on the morning of parade, to exercise a little by himself; in a military attitude, with his sword drawn, he exclaimed, "Attention, company? Rear rank, 3 paces, march!" and he tumbled down into the cellar. His wife hearing the racket, came running in saying, "My dear, have you killed yourself?"
"Go about your business, woman," said the hero, "what do you know about war?"

The world is governed by 3 things—wisdom, authority, and appearances.
Wisdom is for thoughtful people, and appearances for the great mass of superficial people, who can look only at the outside.

A singular tragedy of the late war has been brought to light by the return of Thomas Clark to his family in Johnsonville, Rensselaer county, N. Y. Clark was a doctor, and deserted his family about the opening of the rebellion. He entered the army and was reported to have been shot for desertion. His tomb, marked by a pine board, had been seen near Union Mill, Va., by a Johnsonville man. After thirteen years absence Clark has reappeared in his native town. He says that the night before the execution he changed clothes with a comrade, and escaped. The comrade, less lucky, was shot in Clark's place.

GRANGER WORK.—About the 20th of February Mr. Thomas Hale, of Monroe township, in this county, had his house and entire stock of provisions for the year burned, together with his farming implements. The fire had not died out before the Grangers of the vicinity had commenced to rebuild. They had soot cut and hewn logs enough to build a two-story house, 18x24. The roof is being finished now. Let those who have heretofore sneered at the Grangers take a lesson in practical charity from this. It has been charged by some of the enemies of the Order that selfishness was the motive that actuated them in organizing. In no class is there a greater amount of the milk of human kindness than in the agricultural. The mission of the Grange is to systematize and utilize this. It teaches that all mankind are brothers and that every man and woman has a mission to fulfill in their pilgrimage on earth, that it is his or her duty to redeem suffering and assuage sorrow. May the order grow till it shall embrace every man and woman found worthy, that its influence may be felt to such a degree that it will reclaim the erring and bring them back to the correct path. Indiana Granger.

THE GREAT FLOOD.—Our readers are cognizant of the immense fall of rain in Alabama during the past six weeks and the destruction to property occasioned thereby. Those who live along the great Father of Waters have, however, suffered in a tenfold degree as compared with ourselves. In Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas, whole counties, the fairest and most fertile on the continent are under water and abandoned. It is doubtful, even if the rains cease now, whether a cotton crop can be made in the flooded districts. The destitution in many instances is heartrending. Families have been driven from their homes, and cut off from all means of support, they have to rely on the contributions sent them by generous hearts to more favored localities, taken altogether, it is doubtful if any flood in the history of the United States has caused so much loss of property or such wide spread suffering. Adv.

DON'T JUDGE BY APPEARANCES.—A Boston letterer repeated recently a story which an old lady once told him. This lady at one time kept the most select boarding-house. One day a seedy-looking man, with unkempt hair and beard, came to her door and asked for board. "Sir," she said, "understand that I receive none but gentlemen in my house." "Very well," he replied, "I will go elsewhere." "And who do you think that shabby fellow was?" the venerable lady said to the speaker. "He was no less than Professor John Quincy Adams, now President of the United States."

CHEAP STORAGE.

Cotton Stored at 50 cts. per Bale First Month and 25 cts each succeeding Month, by Gilmer, Browder & Co.

As the season has now opened, we wish to make it known that we are offering extra inducements this year to Farmers and Cotton Factors in the storage of their Cotton, and other Produce, entrusted to our care, in our commodious IRON AND IRON ROOFED WAREHOUSE. And as our facilities for the storage of Cotton are unsurpassed in the city, we will store Cotton at 50 Cents for First Month, 25 Cents each succeeding month, and charge only 75 Cents per Bale Commissions on sales. Planters hauling their Cotton on Wagons and storing it with us, will find good accommodations for their teams and drivers at hand. FREE of charge. All cotton consigned to us by Rail Road will meet prompt attention. Thankful favors and hoping to receive a liberal patronage, we are respectfully, Established a Cotton Warehouse and Close Storage Rooms in the large spacious Brick Fire Proof Warehouse in the rear of our Stores. We propose to offer special inducements to Farmers and Merchants in the Storage and Handling of their Cotton and other Produce consigned to us. Competent and experienced employees, well acquainted with the details of Warehouse Business, will have charge of the proper receiving, sampling, weighing and shipping of cotton. We respectfully solicit the patronage of the Public, feeling convinced of our abilities to serve them advantageously.

TO THE PUBLIC. An advertisement is published in the many papers this city since Tuesday last, signed by combination of Montgomery Warehousemen, which they advertise a reduction of Storage from 75 cents a month for bale of cotton; but upon enquiry, we are reliably informed from parties interested who are signers to the advertisement, that these Warehouses will charge hereafter 6 cents a bale storage for each and every month for any cotton remaining in their respective Warehouses. A glance at the last year's rate will satisfy any one, that whereas they charged 75 cents for the first and 37 1/2 cents for all succeeding months; that any one who stores his cotton, at that time, is compelled to pay for each bale he leaves there after the first month 12 1/2 cents more than he had to pay last season. This would make the Storage of one bale this season in 4 months $2, while they charged last year for the same period only $1.57 1/2 cents. We the undersigned, desir to have it distinctly understood that we charge for for all cotton in our Warehouse 50 cts for the first month, and only 25 cts for each succeeding month, thereby saving planters for a lengthened period of storage considerable money.
