THE DYING SOLDIER.

BY B. DUDLEY WILLIAMS.

In memory of his cousin Harvey Sprinkles, son of Dr. Sprinkles of Calhoun county, killed at the battle of Drainsville, Va.

On the bloody field of battle,

On the burning sands of death;

Lay a form whose quivering limbs,

Told of pain and wasting breath.

But one comrade stood beside him,

On that parched and bloody field,

All the rest were calmly resting,

'Neath the heavy strokes of steel.

Not a soul was there to cheer him,

On the journey to his lonely end,

No kind one to point the dying,

To the path his Saviour trod.

But one comrade stood beside him,

As his eyes were growing dim;

And with tears of love and pity

He knelt down and spoke to him.

"Young friend, now the battle's o'er,

Whispered he in accents low,

'And his poisonous breath forever

In death's arms has laid thee low."

"Swiftly now thy breath is wasting,

Freely now thy life blood flows;

Speak for soon your soul must hasten

From the strife of friends and foes.

Then the dying soldier started,

Life's light eyes toward his friend's,

Rests his head upon his bosom,

And with halting tongue begins

"Now you say the battle's o'er,

And the enemy's day is won;

Must be numbered with the dead."

"Oh! for one more word fought for thee,

For my stricken country's sake;

One more stroke for Southern honor,

For my soul's slight shall take."

"Take a token and a message,

To some friend in far off lands,

Tell them that I felt while fighting,

On the not and bloody sands."

"Tell my father and my mother,

Not to weep for their loved son;

For their Harvey fell while fighting,

For the bloody field was won."

"Tell my sisters when they hear of this,

That my heart for them is true;

And upon the field of battle

I was numbered with the dead."

"And sweet Ellen! must I leave thee?

Tell her I have gone to rest;

Where the 'wicked cease from troubling,

And the weary are at rest."

"Tell her"—but his lips were livid,

And his words were faint and low;

But the words these lips were opened,

Harvey's soul to God had fled.

ATHENS, O., February 12.—The High Joint Convention of the liquor dealers and the ladies held last evening in the Presbyterian Church. The house was packed full of men, women and children. Frank Mann, Geo. Gunters, Bartley Conroy, J. H. & W. Lowry and David Edgar were present as representatives of the liquor dealers. The ladies were represented by their own individual interests.

After singing and praying a few minutes, these gentlemen were invited to the lecture-room adjoining the church for consultation with the ladies, but J. H. Lowry and David Edgar declined to go in until the ladies should be brought in. The other gentlemen returned to consult. No report was made to the ladies of the meeting.

The ladies informed their reporter that no consultation was reached.

The friends of Dr. G. D. & Co., Dr. H. L. and the Arcade Drug Store of Dr. W. Atkinson, conducted the following pledge to the ladies this morning:

"We the undersigned druggists of Athens, Ohio, do hereby promise and agree that we will not sell to or for our stores any intoxicating liquors of any kind to any person or persons for other than medicinal, mechanical or chemical purposes, providing: First, that when wanted for medicinal use we will require a written prescription of a regular physician; second, that when wanted for mechanical or chemical purposes we will satisfy ourselves by a proper and careful inquiry that no honest mechanic or chemist uses intoxicating liquors in his work; and third, that we will not sell to or for our stores any intoxicating liquors of any kind to any person or persons for other than medicinal, mechanical or chemical purposes, providing: First, that when wanted for medicinal use we will require a written prescription of a regular physician; We publish on the outside this week some two columns of disparties from the seat of the woman's war on the dramatic in the West. The affair has been going on for several weeks under the direction of Dr. Dio Lewis, a yankee quack of the first water, and still continues with unabated interest, spreading from State to State. So far the movement has been highly successful in closing the drinking saloons in the towns where it has been inaugurated, but how long they will remain closed after the excitement has had its run is another question. Undoubtedly no case, even the hardest, can withstand the prayers, petitions and manifest presence of a hundred women clamoring around his counter for a discontinuance of his traffic, and the hardest old toper would scarcely have the face to walk up and take his accustomed drink under the battery of two hundred female eyes. So between the influence brought to bear upon the tender and the restraint laid upon his customers, the battle is not always to the strong, and victory usually perches upon the banners of the earnest female reformers. In victory they are generous, however, paying for the liquors they empty into the gutters, and in some instances allowing the victim to travel around with them, make speeches and sell his photographs to admiring auditors, as a further compensation for his losses in trade. Some cases of total depravity have been developed among the cunning mixers of cocktails, the most striking of which is the hard case who, apprised of their coming, the night before carefully emptied his casks of valuable liquors, filled them with rain water, and next day smilingly met the besiegers, sold out his stock of water to them and resolutely closed up shop until the storm should blow over and trade get better. It is not likely that the movement will spread to any of the Southern States, further than Kentucky, and we are only surprised that it did not have its origin in New England rather than the West.

Grange Orators.

Fair discussion of any given popular movement, where there is any merit in it, is calculated to bring that merit prominently to view, and, consequently, greatly to advance the cause. On the other hand, unfair argument in support of it is calculated to do it injury and only injury.

We are led to these remarks by the manner some speakers whom we have heard have of discussing the Grange movement.

The necessities for the organization and the reasons why the same will, if rightly directed, redound to the good of the farmer and with him all other classes of men, are as plentiful as blackberries, and need only be stated to secure the ready assent of intelligent audiences; but some speakers, not content with a simple presentation of the advantages to accrue to the farmer, travel clear out of the record to inveigh against those of other necessary occupations, and to appeal to the prejudices rather than the calm reason of their hearers. Claiming, some of them, to be practical farmers, they, with wonderful assumption, discuss the manner of business of the merchant, about which they cannot, in the nature of things, know much, and in doing so they of course fall into errors, unwittingly make incorrect statements and thus work injury to the cause they are endeavoring to advance. As an instance:

They will take an article, (say coffee,) and assume that the merchant makes a certain profit on each pound, which perhaps may have been the case in one sale. They then assume that the grocery merchant turns over his money once a month or twelve times a year. From this standpoint, they multiply the assumed profit per pound on the first sale by 12 and present as the result something like 700 per cent. or some such ridiculous figure as the yearly profits of the retail coffee merchant.

Now, it is only necessary to present a few facts to show the unfairness of this sort of reasoning.

First, it is by means certain that the merchant can turn over his money 12 or even 6 times a year.

Second, even if he could, while he might make a profit on the sale of one purchase, he might lose on the next.

Coffee is now worth in Baltimore and New York something in the neighborhood of 33 cents per pound. Suppose that this price is the result of a "corner" in coffee got up by speculators, rather than of a short crop, as alleged, and suppose that any merchant buys at this price, as all will, and that coffee should then tumble to the recent price of 26 cents, as is by no means unlikely, would he not have to sell off at a sacrifice and thus heavily lose? How can any man fairly claim that a merchant can make a uniform profit on 12 purchases throughout the year of any article that fluctuates in value as does coffee?

Third, no allowance is ever made for any of these speakers that we have heard for losses in trade by bad debts of otherwise. In one bad debt the merchant may lose the whole of his year's profits on coffee.

We take the article of coffee because it is sometimes used in illustration by men engaged in presenting the claims of the Patrons of Husbandry. We do not say that they wilfully misrepresent. On the contrary, we think such statements only come of a "zeal not according to knowledge," and are calculated to do more injury than good to the cause.

As remarked there is enough merit in the cause per se to build it up and establish it. To stand, it must be reared on its own merits and not on the demerits of men of other callings.

In the laudable efforts of the farmers to build up their own interests, no reasonable man should offer opposition, and indeed no one possessing a love of fair play would; but when speakers of the order travel out of the line of discussion to attack others, they necessarily arouse a spirit of resistance, which, as much as it may be despised, will make itself felt sooner or later.

All the present honorable occupations of life are the necessary outgrowths of our civilization, and all are mutually dependent one upon another. Injury to one is injury to all. True there are abuses to be met, but those affecting the farmer will be cured, in the very nature of things, when the farmer looks closely after his own interests and troubles himself not about the interests of others. The Grange, as we understand it, is designed for the good of the farming interests, and not as a Reformatory Institution to take cognizance of all the abuses of the age. It is designed to build up, not to pull down.

The platform lately put out by the National Grange touching this point is admirable, and we commend it to the careful study of those whose mission it is to propagate the principles of the Patrons of Husbandry. This platform we lay before our readers next week.

We write in the interest of the order when we say these things, for we believe sincerely that whatever advantage may be gained by an exaggerated presentation of the claims of the order and by appeals to the passions and prejudices of men, will be more than lost, in the long run, when the fact is realized that there has been even the slightest deception practiced by public speakers on the subject and when sober second thought comes to us all.

At a meeting of the Town Council held February 10th 1874, an election for Mayor and Councilors of the Town of Jacksonville, was ordered to be held on the first Monday in March 1874.

The following persons were appointed to conduct the election:

J. D. Hammond, }
H. E. Vernon, } Managers.
B. C. Wiley,
S. M. Pruitt, Returning officer.
Thomas Isbell, }
G. L. Turnley, }
Sec'y, Pro tem, }
Intendant.

It will be remembered that the Editor of the Oxford Intelligencer charged that this paper, some years ago, was run under the name of a prominent Radical of this county, for the purpose of securing the county printing. This being untrue, we of course denied it. In the following number he reiterated the charge and offered to quote from the paper of that date and also present certificates from respectable citizens of the county that such was the fact. Supposing it possible that the man had been really misled by the publication here, at the time in question, of a number or two of a paper, by a company of Radicals, called the Alabama Republican, (with which we had nothing to do directly or indirectly and which was really established to crush out the establishment of such a paper, that he might not unwittingly throw himself in a bad attitude by persevering in the assertion. This we asked him to publish, both to set us and himself right on that point. If this week not only refuses to publish our statement, but reiterates the charge, taking care however, not to produce the promised certificates from "respectable citizens" of the county.

Very old subscriber of the Republican, and we have some that have been constant subscribers since the establishment of the paper) knows and can bear testimony to the fact, that in the course of near thirty-eight years, the name of no Radical, prominent or otherwise, has ever been associated with the management of this paper, and that no Radical sentiment or anything squinting at Radical doctrine has ever found the slightest endorsement in its columns, and they know that any statement to the contrary, from whatever source it may come, is an old fashioned, half-headed lie of the most flagrant and criminal kind.

Under this state of facts, therefore, we are reluctantly compelled to pronounce the Editor of the Intelligencer an unmitigated falsifier and calumniator. We have always known him to be a small cross roads demagogue, a shallow fellow, a cheat, a charlatan and a regular dead beat, but we had not before supposed him to be a common liar, and so devoid of all honorable instincts as to refuse to make reparation when convinced of the falsity of his statement.

We are compelled to decline to publish the statements of "A Farmer that Plows," on the Grange organization, on the ground that his name does not accompany the communication. It is a rule of this office, as of other well regulated offices, to never publish a communication of any sort on any subject, unless the author first furnishes his name to the editor, to be made public, if occasion should require. So, if "A Farmer that Plows," will send us his name, we will publish his communication. It is right and proper that all sides of every question should be discussed, in order that the truth may be arrived at; and the Grange movement forms no exception to this rule. Although we belong to the order and sympathize with its declared objects, we will freely admit into our columns well written communications both for and against, when the same come accompanied with a respectable and responsible name.

[Nashville Banner, 13th inst.]
General John Tyler.

During the session of the Quarterly conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Tallahassee on the 30th ult., General John Tyler was licensed to preach. He is the son of the late President Tyler and a brother of the late editor of the Montgomery Mail.

He has recently been delivering some lectures in Florida, on the "Two Civilizations"—tracing that of Plymouth Rock to Denmark and that of Jamestown to Norway. He is a member of the Parisian character bold, adventurous, and enterprising, stern, vigorous and unrelenting; the insatiable desire of public sway; the doctrine of the absolute superiority of religion; the prompt action given to the quarter-deck in command of the crew—absolute central authority, with the dead level of democracy below. To the cavaliers he accords the characteristics and attributes of love of political freedom and devotion to civil liberty; individual independence of character, a generous emulation, and the amenities of social life; courage, chivalry and honor.

This and another lecture of Mr. Tyler's on "Commerce," have attracted considerable attention as masterpieces of research, thought and fertility of illustration. Their author is one of the most cultured men not only in this country, but in this section. The Vanderbilt University would do a good thing for that institution, in our judgment, by securing him to fill one of its chairs. His illustrious name and his great acquirements would detract from the renown it aspires to win and deserve.

A New Grange Degree.

An exchange from the blue grass regions of Kentucky has a nice little account—pure romance of a pleasant occurrence in one of the Lodges. Quite recently while there came a momentary lull in the proceedings, a young brother and sister of the order walked to the front of the master and were united in marriage. The entire audience were taken by surprise, having had no intimation that there was to be a wedding. Soft eyes began to dart love-glances around the grange, and different bachelors exclaimed that the new order exceeded their most sanguine expectations in providing life partners for the faint-hearted. No one need regret this that there is any danger of the Grange idea becoming polluted with politics. No sir, not while there are such chances for using the more improved as well as old styles of agricultural implements such as thrashing and mowing, cradles as is now offered to the Patrons of Husbandry.

How the Yankees Work it.

The Boston Advertiser says: "When a colored man sits down on the civil rights bill and says, 'do not table' on the Lake Michigan steamer, they have a neat way of heading off his enjoyment. The waiter comes around and takes his order and his plate, knife and fork with it, and—doesn't come back again." This plan is neither patented or copyrighted—hence a wit might be made of it and laid by for future reference.

SOUTHERN ARGUS

SPECIAL RATES TO PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

The Southern Argus is the largest two-dollar paper in Alabama. In the five years it has been published, it has attained a larger circulation than any other paper ever extending its circle. It has won its way to unexampled success upon its merits, extending its circle of readers as its acquaintance has extended.

It is not made up from the once-used and cast-off contents of a daily newspaper, but is filled with matter carefully prepared by experienced journalists expressly to meet the wants of the family circle and country home. It is admitted to excel all other papers in these respects:

1. Its unrivaled epitome of general news.
2. Its terse intelligence.
3. Its state news summary.
4. The character of its literary contents.
5. The tone and fairness of its editorials.
6. The wide scope, accuracy, and general interest of its commercial reports.

7. The fullness of its record of the rise and progress of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry in the state.
8. The quantity and quality of its agricultural matter.

9. The fact that nothing offensive to the most refined taste or inimical to the public morals ever admitted to its reading or advertising columns.

10. The fact that it produces it into your grange and neighborhood, I authorize you, until April 1st next, to take single subscriptions for it at $1.50, or to make up a club of ten at $15 each; and I trust you have the inclination as I know you have the influence, to aid me in extending its circulation in your vicinity.

When a club has been formed, additions may be made to it until the 1st of April at club rates.

Remittances may be made by post-office money order, by express by draft, or in registered letters, and will be acknowledged.

The full amount of my subscription will be returned to any subscriber who within three months after the receipt of the first number of the paper, shall notify me that for any reason he is dissatisfied with it.

Address, ROBT. McKEE, SELMA, ALA.

CAUTION.

ALL persons are hereby forewarned against trading for three certain promissory notes payable to the undersigned—two notes on R. D. Attention of persons who desire to purchase Books, Stationery, Musical Instruments, Wall Paper, &c., is directed to the advertisement of Messrs. Patrick & Ombreg, Rome Ga. These gentlemen are known to many of our readers, prompt, accommodating, correct and fair in all their dealings. Give them a call when in Rome, or send your orders.

A Lecture will be delivered at Calhoun College by Col. S. H. Lockett, on Saturday evening Feb. 28th, beginning at 7.30 P. M. The subject will be the Earth and its materials which compose it. There will also be a large number of experiments. The public are invited to attend.

Has any farmer seen an order for one of Mr. Ferguson's cheap but valuable labor-saving cotton planters? If not we would advise all to do so at once, as the Planter is the best of its kind for the price, and invaluable as a farm implement. See advertisement.

Our indefatigable marshal has been working on the sidewalks lately and greatly improved them.

Attention is directed to the election order for Aldermen and Intendant for the town of Jacksonville for the ensuing year.

While in Cross Plains recently we visited the Drug Store of our friend Moody, one of the Republican's advertisers. He has a very fine stock, carefully selected so as to meet the demands of the public in this section.

In addition to his Drug Store, he has a fine assortment of lamps and lamp goods, Stationery, Paints, Oils, Vanishing and Dry Stuffs. His store is headquarters for fine tobacco and cigars, and all at Grangers prices.

CROSS PLAINS.—It was our pleasure to visit this thriving town recently, to be in attendance at the Tournament advertised to be held by the young men of the town and country surrounding. Notwithstanding the hard times and the backward condition of the whole country, Cross Plains is building up and bids fair to become a town of large importance at no distant day. Her business men and mechanics are live and energetic, her schools are good, her hotel, under the management of mine host Hood, is one of the best in the State, her citizens are public spirited and liberal, and her professional men rank deservedly high—all combining the requisites essential to the growth of any town.

Man proposes and God disposes. We can calculate with certainty upon no human event. The young men who were to participate in the Tournament at Cross Plains on the 13th, as well as the large concourse of people who had gathered from all parts of the country to witness the trial of Knightly skill on the part of those who had entered the lists to contest for the reward of the offered prizes and the smiles of lovely women, were sorely disappointed that the day was such as positively forbade any attempt to ride for the prizes. About daylight the young men composing the band of Center, reached the town and were received with true Knightly courtesy by the riders, under the leadership of Maj. Bally, officer of the day. Each succeeded in train brought upon the ground parties from both directions of the line of road, a large concourse of people had gathered in from the country and everywhere promised to go off capitolly; but alas! the windows of heaven were opened and drenched the earth with rain all day long, with only brief intervals. Several attempts were made to ride, but in every instance, when the horses were ready for the lists and before any considerable number could make any trial of skill, the rain would be on them again and drive horsemen and spectators from the field. The same cause operated to prevent the proposed ball at the Cross Plains Hotel, the ladies finding it impossible to come out even in vehicles. The band from Center at intervals throughout the day played from the hotel balcony and acquired themselves most creditably.

For the rain the whole affair would have been a most satisfactory success. No one could possibly help the state of the weather, and consequently no body is to blame that the Tournament did not come off as per program. We hope that the Knights may select some fine day and yet make a trial for the prizes.

One of the most accommodating and courteous young men among our acquaintance is Tom Isbell, at present in the post office here. It would be hard to find a better brace than he and Jim Farmer, who is still employed in the office with him.

An Ill-Treated Hired Years of Age Has Himself.

We find in the Wellsville Free Press of recent date the particulars of a suicide which occurred near that village, in which the self-destructor was a boy but 11 years of age. The subject will be of interest to one that we republish it this morning:

The name of the boy is Eugene, and that of his father is William Johnson. It would appear that the father, who is a carpenter, has always been an object of aversion to both his parents, and that from infancy they have been subjected to the most inhuman and brutal treatment. Kicks and blows have been administered for every trifling offense, and that these have only been varied by cruel and unmerciful whippings whenever the anger of the unnatural father has been aroused by the boy's failing to do as he is bid.

It is said that the boy, failing to do as he is bid, was sent to the woods for nights and days together, rather than to return to his home and undergo the excessive punishment which he knew would be inflicted. For weeks past he and his sister have been compelled to cut out from two and one-half to three cords of wood per day with a cross-cut saw, under the penalty of a severe beating. Last Sunday the parents went to a neighbor's to supper, leaving the children at home; but before going, Johnson told the boy to water the horses. Returning to his house in the afternoon on some errand from the mill, he found his wife visiting, he ascertained that his instructions in regard to the horses had not been complied with, and at once commenced beating and abusing the boy in the most outrageous manner.

When he became weary of torturing the child, he left the house and went back to the neighbor's to finish his visit. Shortly after he left, the poor boy, according to his sister's statement, rather than to undergo the punishment which he knew would be inflicted, he fled from home, and then went to the barn. Being gone a long time, the girl followed him to the barn, where she found him dead and hanging by the neck to a beam.—Buffalo Express.

A Wicked Brazilian Priest.

In Ceara the priest of the parish of Riochao do Sangre (river of blood) has been arrested upon a charge of murdering and causing murder to be committed upon four persons. The motive producing these murders was pecuniary. The priest had fallen deeply in love with one of his parishioners, for more than a year had tried to seduce her and get her to live with him as his concubine. He even had the art to get her father's warm support of his pretensions; but the young girl resisted firmly but the priest's solicitations and the paternal pressure. At last, by the advice of a missionary, the girl fled to the house of a relation, and after a time, betrothed herself to a cousin. Some time later a judge related a judge of high position came to the parish, and on hearing of the state of things, wrote to the Bishop of Ceara about them. The Bishop at once sent a license to marry without delay and by any clergyman. The priest openly declared that the girl should never marry her cousin or any other, in fact, a few days before the marriage day two men—one a slave of the priest's and the other a free man—were seized by the priest and his accomplices and murdered him in the open street of the village. An old man, who came accidentally to the spot, and a relative of the girl, who ran up to the young man's rescue, were next slain, and the bloody scene of the day was closed by the murder of a young girl who on seeing the assassination to perpetration, ran between the murderers and their victims with an image of Christ held before her to implore them to desist. The two assassins were arrested and confessed that the priest had employed them to murder the cousins and other persons, but had charged them strictly to do no harm to the girl who had impeded him with so unbridled and deadly a passion.

Terrible Disaster.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13, '74.

A terrible disaster occurred here between nine and ten o'clock this morning. The large lager beer brewery owned by Henry Muller, situated at the northeast corner of Thirty-third and Jefferson streets, fell with a terrible crash, burying beneath the ruins some twenty workmen. The building was three stories in height, occupied by 200,000 feet, contained vast machinery and all the paraphernalia of a brewing establishment. The brick walls above the foundation to the first story were twenty-two inches thick, thirteen inches at the second and nine inches at the third. The ordinary brewery vaults were in the basement, the fermenting room was on the first floor, while the icehouse, from which the trouble is traced, was on the third floor. As the eastern end of the building was a small frame house used as a residence. This was crushed, and the coals from above set fire to the debris, and thus threatened to make the disaster more horrible in its details. The employees got buckets of water and extinguished the flames before they had gained much headway. The cause of the accident is supposed to have been the insufficient strength of the walls.

Strayed or Stolen.

From the subscriber, on the night of the 17th inst., a large Dark Chestnut Sorrel HORSE, about six years old—had on a black saddle. Said horse is about 16 hands high, and has the brand 'O' on his left hind shoulder. I will pay a liberal reward to any person giving me information that I may get him.

CHOLERA AND PAIN-KILLER.—The efficacy of Perry Davis' well-reputed PAIN-KILLER in all disease of the bowels, even in that terrible scourge, cholera, has been proven by the most convincing authority. Missionaries in China and India have written home in commendation of this remedy in terms that should carry conviction to the most sceptical, while its popularity in communities nearer home is ample proof that the virtues claimed for it are real and tangible. The PAIN-KILLER has been before the public over thirty years, and has won a deservedly high reputation as an alleviator of pain and a preserver of health. It has become a household remedy, from the fact that it gives immediate and permanent relief. It is a purely vegetable preparation made from the best and purest materials, safe to keep and to use in every family. It is recommended by physicians and persons of all classes, and to-day, after a public trial of over thirty years—the average life of man—it stands unrivalled and unexcelled in spreading its usefulness over the wide world. Its large and increasing sale affords positive evidence of its enduring fitness.

FACE ACNE.

The peculiarly painful complaint to which ladies in particular are especially liable, can be cured by the external application of Magic Arma Liniment—a pure, limpid, ruby-colored fluid, which never becomes rancid and has a permanent curative effect. It is very penetrating.

READ THE EVIDENCE.

[Extract from a private letter addressed to a private citizen of Memphis.]

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 30, 1870.

"Sir:—I am convinced that the climate of Minnesota deserves the good name given it—so far as consumptives are concerned—I have observed more sufferers from rheumatism and neuralgia, in this State, than in any other State of the Union. Were I able to afford it, I should certainly establish a 'Sanitary Commission' here, whose chief object should be the distribution of the preparation of Dr. J. C. Allen's Lung Balm. Two applications of this remedy (which I purchased of Messrs. Manfield & Higbee last spring) cured me permanently of facial neuralgia, to which I have been a martyr for some years.

PAIN-KILLER.

1840 For over 30 Years 1874.

Perry Davis' Vegetable Pain-Killer Has Been Tested in Every Variety of Climate, and by Almost Every Nation Known to Americans.

It is the constant companion and estimable friend of the missionary and the traveler, on sea and land, and on one should travel on our Lakes or Rivers without it.

It has been before the public over thirty years, and better reputation than any other proprietary medicine of the present day. At this period there are but few unacquainted with the merits of the Pain-Killer; but while some extol it as a liniment, they know but little of its power in easing pain when taken internally while others use it internally with great success, but are equally ignorant of its healing virtues when applied externally. We there fore wish to say to all that it is equally successful whether used internally or externally, and it stands today, untrivalled by all the great catalogue of family medicines. It is sufficient evidence of its virtues as a standard medicine to know that it is now used in all parts of the world and that its sale is constantly increasing. No curative agent has had such wide spread sale given such universal satisfaction. It is a purely vegetable compound, and perfectly safe in use.

After thirty years, it is still receiving the most unequalled testimonials to its virtues, from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Physicians of the first eminence, recommend it to their patients, and it is a remedy for the cure of all diseases of the bowels, and of all diseases of the stomach, and of all diseases of the liver, and of all diseases of the spleen, and of all diseases of the pancreas, and of all diseases of the gall bladder, and of all diseases of the intestines, and of all diseases of the bladder, and of all diseases of the uterus, and of all diseases of the vagina, and of all diseases of the cervix, and of all diseases of the os, and of all diseases of the vulva, and of all diseases of the clitoris, and
