HEART HISTORY.

Once upon a time, a maiden, fair and young, and fond of love...

THE HEIRESS OF SEAVIEW.

CHAPTER VIII.

While Irvie thus grew nearer to Allen, the distance between herself and Richard widened...

One night she stood beneath the glow of the lamps, merrily dressed for a ball...

Some irresistible impulse drew him into the room; drew him to her side, and he spoke, forgetting everything in the fascination her presence threw around him...

"Irvie, I have been thinking of you all day, come sing me a song without any sadness before you leave me for the evening."

"I do not feel like singing," she answered coldly, lifting her eyes with a look of wonder at his happy, earnest tone...

"It seems so," she answered, glancing down, tily clasping and unclasping a diamond bracelet on her round white arm...

He looked at her a moment waiting for her to lift her eyes, then he caught her hands and said what he afterwards regretted...

St. Louis, Feb. 11th, 1874. The National Grange-to-day, after the transaction of some minor business...

First—United by the strong and faithful tie of agriculture, we mutually resolve to labor for the good of our Order, our country and mankind...

Second—We heartily endorse the motto, "In essentials, unity; in non-essentials, liberty; in all things, charity."

Third—We shall endeavor to advance our cause by laboring to accomplish the following objects:—To develop a better and higher neighborhood among ourselves...

Fourth—Our business interests. We desire to bring producers and consumers, farmers and manufacturers, into the most direct and friendly relations possible...

Our efforts, so far as business is concerned, are not only for the benefit of producers and consumers, but also for all other interests that tend to bring these two parties into speedy and economical contact...

We are not enemies of the farmer, nor of any other class of laborers, nor of any other class of producers, nor of any other class of consumers...

The English Language.

The words of the English language are a compound of several languages. The language may be looked upon as a compilation, both in words and expression of various dialects. The origin is from the Saxon language. Our law terms are derived from the Norman, our military terms from the French, our scientific terms from the Greek, and our stock of nouns from the Latin, through the medium of the French. Nearly all English verbs are German, and nearly every noun or adjective is taken from other dialects. The English language is composed of 15,733 words—of which 6,792 are from Latin, 3,312 from the French, 1,669 from Saxon, 1,669 from the Greek, 691 from the Dutch, 211 from Italian, 106 from the German, (not including verbs,) 90 from the Welsh, 75 from the Danish, 59 from the Spanish, 50 from the Icelandic, 31 from the Swedish, 31 from the Gothic, 16 from the Hebrew, 13 from the Teutonic, and the remainder from other languages.

The Amende Honorable.

From Huntsville Democrat.
Last week's Advocate appeared a communication over the signature of J. L. Ridley, using offensive language towards the Editor of the Democrat. Under the influence of cool reflection and calm reason, Dr. Ridley of his own free will, in the note published above, makes the amende honorable by withdrawing "the offensive part" of his communication. Convinced of his error, he has had the moral courage to make a public acknowledgement of it. Right thinking men can not fail to appreciate the manhood and honor, which prompted this reparation of a wrong.

Huntsville, Feb. 18, 1873.
Mr. J. W. Clay: You tried to approach me, the evening before the publication of an article in the Huntsville advocate. I was excited and refused to listen. I think I did wrong, and after reflection, I called upon Dr. Steinback and asked him to bear you a note to call at my house. I did it all voluntarily, without being asked on your part or that of your friends, because I think I was entirely too violent. I have no connection with the labor Union, and if my name was used there, it was without my knowledge. The offensive part of my note I am willing to withdraw.

Our pews are side by side in the Church, and I see no reason why we should be enemies. You are at liberty to use this as you like. I think it always manly to acknowledge a wrong, and I do this freely without advice from any body.

Very respectfully,
J. L. RIDLEY.

Trial of Dr. Shegog.

This important State case was tried last week, D. R. Hundley for the State, and Messrs. J. B. More, J. W. Baker, M. L. Frierson, Jos. Phelan and Jos. Wheeler for the defense. The following jury was impaneled to try the case: E. P. Shackelford, S. D. Zouson, Wm. Campbell, Y. C. Wright, Ed. Phippen, George Gray, Phil. Winter, A. B. Hall, Wm. Gibson, John Gibson, Wm. Hardwick, R. E. Tweedy. It was one of the most intelligent juries ever impaneled in Alabama. The case occupied two days in the trial, and resulted in a hung jury, seven being for conviction, and five for acquittal. As we were the prosecuting counsel in the case we forbear to make any remarks on the subject, further than to give the simple statement of fact—a bona fide—North Alabama Reporter.

A Prisoner in a petty court was asked by the judge if he had any counsel. "Yes," he said, "I had engaged an old bald-headed fellow to defend me, but I don't see him round, and I rather guess he's out for a drink."

The bolt and Supper at the Franklin House, on the 12th inst., was a grand success. It was given by the young men of Tusculumbia in honor of Mr. R. C. Beaumont, lately married.—Florence Times Journal.
