GO WEST THROUGH ST. LOUIS
To all who are seeking new homes in or about to take a trip to Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Nebraska, Oregon or California, we recommend a cheap, safe, quick and direct route by way of St. Louis, over the Missouri Pacific Through Line. It is equipped with fine Day Coaches, Pullman's Sleeping Cars, Pullman's Safety Platform, and the celebrated Westinghouse Air-Brake, and runs its trains from St. Louis to principal points in the West without change. We believe that Missouri Pacific Through Line has the best track of any road west of the Mississippi River, and with its superior equipment and unvalued comfort for passengers, has become the great popular thoroughfare between the East and the West. Trains from the North, South and East connect at St. Louis with trains of the Missouri Pacific.

ORIGINATING New Fruit.
President Wilder in an address before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, said: I would rather be the man who shall originate a luscious fruit, suited to cultivation throughout our land, of which successive generations shall partake, long after I shall be consigned to the bosom of mother earth, than to wear the crown of the proudest conqueror who has ever triumphed over his fellow men.

A Wonderful Cave.

Some interesting discoveries have just been made in a cave called "King Solomon's Cave," Montana, United States, and an account of them is given by a correspondent of the Deer Lodge Independent, who formed one of a party of explorers of the cave in question. After crawling through several narrow passages, into "a most magnificent chamber," the attention of the explorers was attracted by a massive shield made of copper, 57 inches in length, and 38 inches in width, leaning against the wall; about 10 feet beyond the shield and 8 from the floor was a cavity in the wall. One of the party, by the aid of some stones, climbed up to this aperture with a light, but quickly descended in such a state of alarm, that he was for some moments unable to explain that in the niche lay a petrified giant. The other explorers immediately climbed up to the aperture and gazed in. There, sure enough, was the monster man, whose dimensions on measurement were found to be 9 feet, 7 inches in length, 38 inches the breast, and 2 feet deep. A helmet of brass or copper, of gigantic proportions, was on his head, which "the corrosive element of time had sealed to his brow. He seems to have been "a disagreeable customer," and it is, perhaps as well that he is dead and petrified, for near him were two mammoth spearheads one of them with a socket of silver, into which to insert a large pole or handle. There was also a large hook made of bone, apparently manufactured from the tusk of an extinct "leviathan of the land." On the wall were some strange looking letters and pictures of 3 ships, each having 3 masts, the middle mast being only two thirds the height of the outward ones.—There was also on a flat stone, in the wall, the picture of a large man, with a spear in his hand, and of another ship. On removing this stone, another chamber was discovered, in which were the bones of several more giants, a primitive quartz crusher, and a number of tools made of copper. It is supposed that these poor giants were at work a thousand years ago in the cave when a slide from the mountain above, immured them in a living tomb. The search is to be further prosecuted; and in the meantime, the explorers are described as "almost wild with the strange and curious thing they have discovered. This beats the "sea serpent to fits."

The State Senate Committee will report favorably the bill to consolidate the city and county of New York. This bill should meet with no opposition. It will simplify the government, and ought to lessen the expense of its administration.

In a California obituary it is stated that "The deceased was a person of romantic nature. He plucked the breast of his gun in the fire, and looking down the muzzle, departed hence instantaneously."

Relative Weight of Men and Women.

A recent writer offers certain interesting facts regarding the relative weight of men and women, from which we condense as follows: The average weight of boys at birth range a little over six pounds and a half, while girls fall a little below this figure. For the first twelve years the sexes increase in weight in about the same ratio after which time the boys take the decided lead—the result being that young men of twenty average about one hundred and forty-three pounds, while the average for young women of the same age is twenty-three pounds less. Men reach their heaviest bulk at the age of thirty-five, their average weight at that time being about one hundred and fifty-two pounds. The maximum of weight is attained by women at fifty years, and is about one hundred and twenty-eight pounds. The weight of the average man or woman at full growth is about twenty times that at birth.

Clara Miller was Madame Mundi's maiden name, Louisa Muhlbach, the name by which she is best known in this country, being a mere non de plume. Her husband was also a writer not unknown to fame, besides being at the time of his death professor of arts and sciences. As the age of fifty-nine this gifted woman's career is closed, and now that the ridiculous mill has ceased to grind, shall not its grain be overhauled, and even from the very screenings something be found worth carrying away? Capricious fashion may reconsider her hasty mandate, and looking back upon the treasury of thought left by this neorenaissance of fiction, allow us to winnow from it among some dross much that deserves to be prized. She was of gentle parentage and carefully reared. Her life is said to have been correct and blameless. In one respect she is worthy of all imitation. Her industry was indefatigable, and if industry, accompanied by "perseverance," is not genius, they are closely akin. In considering her life and lamenting her death, how imperatively comes home to us the scriptural injunction, "Work while it is day, for the night cometh in which no man may work!"—[Home and School.

THE RULING PASSION STRONG IN DEATH.

A reformed gambler was about to die, and sent for a minister, when the following conversation occurred:

"Pastor, do you think I am near death?"
"I regret to say I believe you are."
"Do you think, since I am converted, I will go to heaven?"
"I do."
"Do you expect to go there?"
"Yes, I believe I will."
"Well, we'll be angels, won't we, and have wings to fly with?"
"Yes I am sure we'll be like angels."
"Well, then," said the dying man, "I'll bet you five dollars I will beat you flying."
