SHOT AND KILLED.

A deranged man attacks one of our old citizens with a knife, and is shot and killed by the latter, in self defense.

Our old and worthy fellow citizen Mr. Jan. W. Carter, was drawn in a difficulty at his residence in this County, on Tuesday last, and was forced to kill a man by the name of J. D. Stevenson, who, it was afterwards ascertained was a nephew of Gov. John C. Brown, of Tenn. Stevenson, who was a deranged man, went to Mr. Carter's residence, and after a short conversation with Mr. Carter and without the least provocation, drew a knife and advanced on Mr. Carter, who attempted to keep him back by raising a chair, meantime backing towards the corner of the room where his gun was resting. The deranged man made several thrusts at Mr. Carter, one of them cutting through his clothes. As the last lunge was made at him Carter seized his gun and fired, shooting Stevenson in the head. The affair occurred about sundown on Tuesday evening, and at 10 o'clock the regretted man died. No one regretted more the death of Mr. Carter, than the man who was killed. Mr. Carter was a man of high character, and a man who had never before seen. Mr. W. G. Lewis, of Pulaski, coming down Wednesday, identified the remains as being those of Stevenson, and a nephew of Gov. Brown, of Tenn.

—Prof. G. F. McDonald, was one of the "Boys in Gray," in the "Lost Cause," and in which four of his brothers yielded up their lives in defense of the South.

—At a meeting of the Directors of the S & N R R at Montgomery a few days since, important resolutions were adopted looking to the establishment of cheap rates of freight on the best results to the road, and contribute much toward the prosperity of the State.

—J. R. Payne and T. J. Tanner have associated themselves together in a cotton shipping and soliciting agency. We trust they will meet with abundant success.

—The Memorial Association had meetings at C. F. Church on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, when Committees were appointed and all arrangements were made for the ceremonies at the Cemetery on Sunday.

Prof. G. F. McDonald.

This accomplished gentleman and popular citizen of Montgomery, spent the night of the 2nd inst. at Athens for the purpose of opening his Dancing Academy, should he meet sufficient encouragement. This has been given him and he will return to Athens on Friday, on Monday evening next for the purpose of arranging classes here. All the papers published at his home, Montgomery, and all other points he has visited are united in saying that, besides being a thorough master of his art and "the best in the business" he is a refined and elegant gentleman. The Prof. will also instruct classes at Columbus and Pulaski. He seemed much pleased with our town and those of our citizens he had met.

—The professional card of Dr. Jno B. Sawyers will be found to day. He has been removed to cotton hill, in this city, and can be found at the residence of Hon. Jno B. McClellan.

Lyman's Historical Chart.

Rev. J. K. Armstrong, of the Athens Female Institute, speaks of it as a work of almost inestimable value.

—Dr. Wm. R. McWilliams, was on Sunday morning last, elected Superintendent of the C. P. Sabbath School, in place of Dr. Hoffman, whose professional duties so often require him to be absent, caused him to tender his resignation.

—We are deeply pained to state that Mrs. Samuel Tanner Jr. continues very ill, and it is not expected by her physicians that she can live many days. Her anxious friends had hoped that she might survive the attack and be again restored to health.

Lyman's Historical Chart.

It is a picture of History both ancient and modern.

A CARD.

To the voters of Limestone County. Since the announcement of my name as a candidate for Tax Collector, circumstances have so changed as to induce my withdrawal from the canvass. It is due my friends as well as myself that my reasons for so doing should be stated.

I was the first to propose publicly to run for that office—but at this time there are numerous candidates for it, one or two of whom are disabled from doing much physical labor, and to promote harmony and to do what little I can to prevent a division among our people I have ceased to be an office-seeker.

S. C. TWITTY.

—Five million acres of cotton, sugar and other crop-producing land in Louisiana are said to have been submerged by the present inundation.

—The President's veto has been sustained, in the absence of a two-thirds vote required to pass the bill in spite of his objections. No debate was permitted.

The amount of damage done by floods, at least in present, is right full, and that which must attend the loss of crops for the season, will add greatly to the amount of suffering yet in store for luckless victims of the treacherous rivers.

The law making Memorial Day a legal holiday in Georgia, will take effect the 1st of June next.

AGIR's Soliloquy in Church.

BY A CINCINNATI LADY.

Dear me! how early I am! Our clock must be too fast; and if there is anything I detest, it is to sit here so long before anyone else begins to come. But, then, never mind. It will give me time to compose myself and clothe, and a good opportunity of seeing what everybody else has on new as they come in.

There's Miss Slim; now, in her old grey dress and bonnet, as usual. She never has on anything new, and she always comes early and takes her seat as quietly as a little grey mouse. O dear! I believe I should go if I thought there was any danger of my ever being an old maid like her. My conscience what a fearful long prayer she makes! Anybody would suppose she was a married woman, with a dozen children and a degenerate husband, and was closing the week's praying for the whole of them.

There's that Wentworth family, all rigged out in their Sunday best. I declare their clothes are the greater part of my prayer. They look and act as if they could scarcely carry them. How they parade up to their seat in front of the whole congregation. Good gracious! they needn't put on such airs, for can remember the time (not very long ago, either), when Mrs. Wentworth did the principal part of her sewing on Sunday, and was not only too poor to go to church, but was too poor to remember the commandments about keeping holy the Sabbath day. But old Wentworth has made lots of money since then, so now they can afford to be religious. Dear me! I wonder if that isn't a mistake about the rich man having difficulty in getting into heaven; surely he can't have so very much more than the poor man in getting into church.

Here comes old Stearns, the red nosed hypochondriac. I think he ought to be ashamed to show his face inside of a church door, when everybody knows he spends his week-days in beer saloons, treats his wife and children shamefully, and only puts on his "Meek as Moses" air with his Sunday clothes, when he takes up his prayer-book and line of march for the "house of worship."

Why, how fast they are coming! Always do toward the last so that you can hardly keep track of the different ones. There! the bell has stopped its everlasting clanging, and I guess everybody is here.

No; there's Mrs. May, "the bride," just coming in. Came late on purpose to show her clothes, for she's all decked out in her bridal finery. I declare I should think it was enough to have her marriage advertised in the papers, without advertising it on her person alone. Really, though, her hat is very elegant; seems to be one mass of flowers. I wonder, when I am married, if I can afford such a hat as that.

I don't doubt it; if this parrot continues and Mrs. May's face grows much longer, and her nose shorter, will be a miracle. I have any hat at all, not to speak of all the other things. But "fortune favors the brave," and if ever I am married, I will have a nice outfit, panic or no panic, for I never expect to have the chance more than once.

Just see Mrs. May and that Wentworth family kneel—what a spread they make of it. (I do wonder if my dress hangs gracefully in the back—I hope so for it does look so awkward all crumpled up.)

Really I should think Ida Jones would be ashamed to be "peeping" at every person who comes in. What an elegant new cloak she has on. I must say I don't see how her father can afford it, but she says they run him and live beyond their means, and if that's the case, I guess she won't flaunt in such clothes much longer. That is her brother sitting at her left. Isn't he handsome? lovely eyes and monstrosity, and such an air!

But "they say" he is horribly wild and dissipated, and spends his time, most of it, in any but the most desirable company. But he is handsome, and for my part, I wouldn't give a fig for your looks, looks, perpendicularly fellows, who never have a bit of fun about them.

[A-m-e-n!] Good heavens! what a voice that man has! I declare it's enough to raise the dead; and if I hear about him is true, he does raise Cain occasionally.

Oh, dear! dear! There comes that contribution plate. I wonder if I have any change? Nothing smaller than a dollar bill, as I live; and, really, I can't afford to give that. This horrible old parrot, my respected sister has cut down my allowance and proper, and preclude not to notice it, though I do stick the old plate up most unfeelingly, and I stare at you so when you don't give them anything; but I can't help it. Oh, they begin at home," so let them stare; my seat is paid for.

There's that odious Mrs. Pry, the biggest gossip in town, (hope she didn't notice that I didn't contribute anything, though I'll never see her.) I don't see how she can keep still during service, and she couldn't if she was not gathering material for fresh gossip all the time. I hope she will notice me from New York. Won't she envy me, though I know all the girls do, and are puzzling their brains trying to make out where they came from, what they cost, and all about it.

I must see Mrs. Pry after church, and find out if it is really so that Allie Ray has run away to get married. She will be sure to know.

Oh, hum, I do believe I've lost my place; where is it? Oh, well, I'm sure I'm glad of it. It's so tedious sitting here so long, with nothing to occupy one's mind.

Old co-partnership—whisky and ignorance; whisky and poverty; whisky and sensuality; whisky and artifice; whisky and degradation; whisky and disease; whisky and destruction.

The principal merchant of Hazlehurst, Miss., published a card in which they warn their customers that they will not, after this year, furnish on credit orders, corn, hay, for teams, or corn-meal for bread, and they publish the determination in order that their friends may raise such things for themselves, or be enabled to pay cash for them.

A Corning (Ia.) youth paid his attentions to two young ladies and proposed marriage to both. They found out about it, invited him to the house of one of them and asked him to take a seat between them, which he did, sitting down in a tub of water over which a covering had been nicely spread. Then they politely requested him not to be in a hurry to go, but he went.

The Memorial Association is to meet once in each month, and the Mite Society will one night in every week at different residences in town for the purpose of collecting at them will be saved up and applied to erecting a monument to the Confederate dead.

Question of C. P. Sabbath School to be answered next Sunday. A king marched forth with his army to meet an enemy, but when he came in sight he found them all from the least to the greatest, slain and their dead bodies stretched upon the ground.

Who was the King, and by whom were the enemy slain?

Quite a large audience filled the City Hall on Monday evening, to witness the second presentation of Bulwer's beautiful play, "The Lady of Lyons, or Love and Pride." The play was well cast and its successful rendition and the pleasure, with which it was received, must indeed have been gratifying to all who took part in it, as well as to Mrs. R. V. Howard, Capt. P. L. Jones and Mr. J. H. Hine, who had the entertainment in charge, and who, knowing no such word as fail, were bound to see it. Success. Everything went off well. A happy Monday evening would by no means be forgotten.

The Claude Melodie, of Col. Kelly, of New Orleans, was excellent, and in which he bore himself throughout with the confident bearing of an old stager, while Miss Zella, the charming daughter of our old friend, Dr. Polk, of Decatur, as the beautiful Pauline Deschappelles, gave, in the difficult role, a happy conception of the character and evidenced no little histrionic ability which a short practice would render perfect. Miss Emma C., as Madame Deschappelles, Miss Sallie B. H., as Widow Melinotte; Miss Col. Dams; W. P. Davis, as Glavie; (the Lord Dunderberg of the occasion); J. B. Bates, as Mons. Deschappelles; the characters of Gaspar; Capt. Gerovis and Landlady, by Jas. Armstrong, and S. T. Brittle, as Benvenuto; all admirably and well sustained the leading characters of the play. We should like space to speak at length of an occasion which gave an evening of so much pleasure and enjoyment to all. We trust now an amateur dramatic taste will be fostered and fully developed, among our young Athens friends. There is considerable talent in this line, in our midst, and should be brought out.

The Alabama river, on the 27th, lacked only a few inches of being as high as it was in 1865.

The Southern Baptist convention meets in Jefferson, Texas, to day (Thursday) and many of that denomination from this state have left to attend it.

I fear, said a country minister to his flock, when I explained to you my last charity sermon that philanthropy was the love of our species; you must have understood me to say specie, which may account for the smallness of the collection.

The Mississippi river is falling at New Orleans, and the condition of the inundation region improving.

Nine of the largest cotton parishes of Louisiana are inundated, and 250,000 bales of cotton and 100,000 acres of corn was destroyed, without counting small farms and gardens. Twelve parishes producing annually 30,000 hogheads of sugar, are also overflowed. Twenty-five thousand people are already suffering for food, and the number is rapidly increasing. Crops are also being destroyed in the uplands by rain. Business in Monroe is almost completely suspended. Water 25 to 30 miles wide is sweeping through St. Landry and Avoyelles parishes, which are included in the above statement.

A number of highly respectable and strictly moral young gentlemen of this city have organized an association, to be known as the "Gallants Club," the object of which is to furnish young ladies who have no regular beau an escort to church, concert lectures, and places of amusement. All members are to undergo a rigid examination as to character, and, before being admitted, and they obligate themselves to obey all the orders of the executive committee. Any lady wishing an escort has only to apply to the president of the society, nomination for the evening, and a young man is detailed for the purpose. As soon as a young man becomes engaged he must withdraw from the organization.—St. Louis Globe.

Advertising Medium in the World!

Advertisers throughout the country are requested to note this fact, that they can have an advertisement inserted in the Chicago Tribune at less than the actual cost of getting the type 100 times." For instance, here is an advertisement of two lines:

IT TALKS with its advertise in any paper besides the Chicago Tribune for 100 newspapers for $100.

The cost of inserting this two-line advertisement in the 100 newspapers would be but 50¢ or two cents for each newspaper in which it is inserted. Besides this great cheapness, the Chicago Tribune also saves the considerable time and expense involved in corresponding with 100 newspapers. You should send your order direct to each newspaper, being just less than the postage. IT TALKS can prove the unparalleled cheapness of its plan of advertising.

The new papers of these lines are excellent, and the circulation in all of the States of the Union. All the leading and shipping concerns of the country use IT TALKS as a medium in these papers, and, therefore, the circulation of these papers is enormous. IT TALKS is an advertising medium.
