The Annual Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, of the diocese of Alabama, will convene in Eufaula, at 10 A. M. on Thursday, May 14th.

It is the first time that the Convention of this body selected Eufaula as their place of meeting.

A grand prize concert is to come off at Houston, Texas, on the 20th of July.

Mr. J. E. Foster, the manager and those connected with him are responsible and reputable citizens of Texas.

Tickets are two dollars and the holder of each ticket has a chance in a grand drawing of valuable Texas property.

About 3 o'clock yesterday morning the special police employed by some of the merchants to watch their premises at night, heard a noise in rear of LeGrand & Co's grocery department, on Commerce street. Proceeding where the noise had been heard they found that an enterprising thief had wrenched off a window, but a row of iron bars interfered with further work in that direction. They however, kept up the search, and found the thief attempting to break into the store of Messrs. Griel & Co. He proved to be a negro man, whose name has escaped us. He confessed to his acts at LeGrand's and Griel's and was placed in the lock-up.

There was quite a large audience at Standard Club Hall Wednesday evening. The vocal and instrumental music would have done credit to professionalists. The programme was as follows:

Overture-Sirenne-Professor Karsch, leader.

Descriptive ballad-Marguerite-Mr. G. H. Martin.

Duet-I have lived and loved thee-by Mrs. Oppenheimer and Mr. J. H. Walker.

Violin and Piano-Fantasia Pastorale-Messrs. B. and L. Straussburg.

Solo Violin-Elegie-Mr. A. F. Gibson.

Ballad-Good night my child-Mrs. Oppenheimer.

Tenor Solo-with violin obbligato-Heaven has shed a tear-Messrs. Martin and Gibson.

Duet-The Pale Moon-Mrs. Oppenheimer and Mr. Martin.

Masters Bennie and Leo Straussburg, by request, favored the audience with another violin and piano performance.

Each piece in the programme was most heartily applauded, and would have been repeated, if the audience could have carried out their wishes. Messrs. Martin and Gibson are citizens of Baltimore, who happening here on business kindly consented to take part in the entertainment. Mr. Martin's voice is one of the finest tenors in America, and Mr. Gibson on the violin is unexcelled. Their city should be proud of such musical sons as they have proven themselves to be. They have always a warm welcome to Montgomery. The others are our own home people to whom we have often been indebted for rare musical treats. Mr. Straussburg's little boys are wonderful musicians for their age.

After the concert there was a most capital farce, "The April Fool" with the following cast:

Mr. Oldbook.....Mr. E. H. Jacob.

Mr. Sparks.....Mr. L. Goldman.

Mr. Poddles.....Mr. S. Jacob.

Muffs.....Mr. S. Meyer.

Diana Oldbook.....Miss M. Jacob.

Lady Toxophilites.....Lady Amateurs.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Reported by the Associated Press for the Montgomery Daily Advertiser.

WASHINGTON, April 30.

Consumers of iron and steel are appealing for a reduction of the tariff.

It is understood that the committee on appropriations will report the River and Harbor bill without amendment.

No Executive session to-day.

House.-Bill was offered to bridge the Washita at Monroe and the Red River at Shreveport. Motion was made by Negley of Pennsylvania in behalf of the North Louisiana and Texas R. R. Objection was raised and the bill went over. Louisville and Portland Canal bill passed and goes to the President.

Senate.-Oglesby introduced a bill to promote commerce between the States and cheapen transportation of freight and passengers between the Atlantic seaboard and the West.

Anthony presented a paper regarding tenure of office of President pro tem of Senate. Ordered printed. This touches Carpenter.

Civil Rights bill was resumed. Norman made a telling speech opening, "When the morning stars first sang together, it would have been worth some dollars if the Republican party had been present. It would never have consented to the creation of man, unless all should be equal and upon the same footing. Nine years ago four millions of slaves were set free, the next year they were invested with Civil Rights. The third year they were given the ballot, and the fourth year made the rulers of man within that brief of space of time. The negroes were made professors of Republican doctrines, and set up as rulers. History furnished no such parallel. Of the six hundred thousand Israelites who went out from Egypt but two were found competent to be rulers in forty years, though they were instructed by signs from the Great Creator of the Universe. The Republican party had made six hundred thousand rulers in forty minutes without any assistance. The man and brother was taken out of the corral, and made a Republican Statesman by an act of Congress. Since then the Republican party has become diseased, and having robbed its Southern neighbors, is now dividing its time between philanthropy as a profession, and public plunder as a trade." Norwood will conclude to-morrow.

Probabilities.-For the South Atlantic and East Gulf States, rising temperature, clear weather, and fresh to brisk south to southeast winds. The Ohio river will continue falling at Pittsburg, and rising at Louisville and Evansville. The Mississippi below Cairo will remain nearly stationary.

The Signal Office reports as follows in reference to the condition of the Western Mississippi for the past twenty-four hours: The Mississippi has fallen one inch at St. Paul, risen from the LaCrosse to Warsaw, fallen from that point to Cairo, remained about stationary thence to Vicksburg, with an upward tendency, and fallen four inches at New Orleans, being now twenty inches below the beach-mark at that point. The Missouri has fallen at that point a slight rise of two inches. The Ohio has fallen at Pittsburg and risen from Marietta to Evansville, with a downward tendency below that point; the greatest rise is thirty inches at Louisville. The Alleghany, Monongahela and Arkansas have fallen steadily, while the Cumberland and Red rivers have risen slightly.

GRANGERS' COLUMN.

A Southern Corn Crop.

I have recently seen an experiment in corn planting which I think may prove instructive to some of my brethren farmers of the South at least. One acre of land was taken up and planted before last, after the winter cut off, and sowed broadcast with corn. When the vines had reached their growth previous to flowering, sixty bushels of plucked lime was applied to them. The soil was then turned under with a two-horse plow. In this state the lot remained until last spring, when it was broken up and laid off in two feet (I think); the corn was planted in rows, and the seed checked. It received the usual cultivation of this section—that is, three ploughing and two hoeings (except that it was not bedded). The acre yielded seventy-six and three-fourths bushels by actual measurement. The seed used is peculiar. It was produced by the gentleman who made the experiment, several years ago, from a volunteer stalk which did not come to perfection. The yield of the stalk was five pounds of corn. This corn has become quite celebrated, and one of the proofs of the value of a careful selection. This yield of 76 3/4 bushels may not strike the northern farmers as anything remarkable, but if they will remember that our average is only ten bushels of corn per acre, they will at once see the value of the foregoing to southern agriculture. One bushel of peas will broadcast the acre, and cost one dollar, the time here, scattered, will cost fifteen cents per bushel. The lot is now in wheat, and its owner expects it to produce twenty-five or thirty bushels, which, for this country, will be a good yield. The experiment will not cost much, and I am sure will repay any farmer. Clover, perhaps, will increase the yield of both wheat and corn. One acre of corn and peas, worth more than eight cultivated, we generally do.—John Carmichael, Hagerman Co., Ga.

From the Atlanta Citizen.

Public Meeting for the Encouragement of Immigration.

In answer to a call made for a meeting of the citizens of Atlanta county, to take in consideration matters tending to the encouragement of immigration to the county of Atlanta, a large number of the citizens of the county assembled at the Court House, in the town of Prattville, on the 14th inst.

The meeting was organized by calling Samuel S. Booth, Esq., to the chair.

The chairman briefly, but with force, explained the object of the meeting, referring to the extensive and uncultivated land in the county—the capacity of our soil to provide every article necessary for human consumption—our splendid water powers and vast bodies of timber and the advantages derivable from an increase of population of an industrious and enterprising character.

On motion, T. W. Sadler was elected Secretary, Col. C. S. G. Doster was requested to read to the meeting a letter which he had recently received from a gentleman in the North West, making various inducements as the climate, soil, health, productions, social, religious and educational advantages of the county, with a view to making settlements.

On motion of Col. W. H. Northington, a committee of two persons, with Col. Doster as chairman, was appointed to answer said inquiries, viz: Col. C. S. G. Doster, H. F. DeBarablen, T. W. Sadler, Joseph Abraham, E. Pratt, J. E. Smith, Andrew J. Hall, W. D. Smith and Theodore Nunn.

It was ordered that the Atlanta Citizen be requested to publish the proceedings, and return the Montgomery Advertiser and State Journal to the meeting.

The meeting was characterized by a goodly degree of interest. Some of our larger land owners declared their readiness to give each alternate eighty acres to industrious immigrants for the purpose of attracting them to this the most healthy and inviting field now open to enterprise and capital in the State. All colors and parties were in attendance, and by their united action invited, with open arms, all persons who seek to live by honest effort and obey the laws, to come into our midst.

Our Hay.

One of our farming friends, who resides near Philadelphia, and has a large milk farm, tells us that for the past four years he has not raised hay and has found so much good to result from the practice, that he is thinking of making it a substitute for hay for regular cow feed, as far as other circumstances will allow. He says that the grain is better than any other, and while the whole plant is yet green and takes rather more pains in the drying, as the oat is rather more likely to mould than the ordinary grass. He claims that he can cut the ordinary crop of at least as good food from the same space of ground in a shorter time in this way than he can from an ordinary hay field.

This may be so, yet there seems to be some objections. In this part of the country at least, if March be wet, or the season late, oats cannot be got in till the middle of April, and it is one of those things which requires to be in very early order to be certain of well. Again the oat is more nutritious in regard to soil than grass is. If often happens that land which makes favorable to a good crop of oats so far as the grain is concerned, makes very little straw; and a field of oats not much over a foot high would not be very profitable as a "forage crop." Then, again, animal labor must be spent on an oat crop, while on a good stand of timothy seed, the same sowing will do for two, and sometimes for three years. This saving of labor alone seems to us to be a strong item which ought not to be overlooked.

Yet it seems quite likely that this oat hay idea might very often be taken advantage of to good purpose, and so, as the correspondents often modestly say, we offer it for whatever it is worth.—Germanian Telegraph.

Help Each Other.

Whatever policy or organization that may tend to array one section of the people or one interest of the country against another, may well be considered as damaging to the great public good. As such, but disappointed parties and damages, caused by the latter, are ready to avail themselves of any pretext to vent their feelings on innocent persons, and to do harm to the community.

Let it be remembered that the best way to help each other is to help the community, and to do this we must help each other.

an extreme element in humane character. With many but little good can be seen, except in the line of personal property. The 230 must lead the way or all will come to naught. The necessity of mutual endurance, or reciprocal bearing and forbearing occupies no place in the area of their thoughts. They forget that as each member of the body corporate is essential to its completeness in the varied interests of all civil and social compact each member or department is a necessity to the perfection of the other. The adorning and healthful development of the one does not dwarf but contributes its proportion to the maturity of the other. Concerted action effects wondrous results. Here lies the great element of success. Weakness here gains strength; penury and ignorance may here become wise and wealthy. Everywhere those who are most united are most successful. Dissension weakens, distracts and divides. It makes an easy prey of those who are its victims. One of the best of our meshes; strive to build each other up. Our agricultural and commercial our social and civil interests all seek to develop and mature, then we shall be one of the mightiest nations of the world. Let us be blessed.—Gadsden Times.

The Cotton Crop of 1874.

[Correspondent of the Atlanta News.]

Letters are being daily received from the North directed to all parts of the Southern States, soliciting information about the quantity of land planted in cotton this year. In comparison with the acreage last year. The planters themselves through the medium of the Grangers are better posted as to this question than any outsiders can be. The influence of the Grangers, and also to the pressing necessities of the people, we are glad to say that a much larger area has been devoted to cotton and small grain than during any previous year since the war. Go into any direction we may, in this State and Georgia, and we behold "vast fields of living green." The oat crop is one to two hundred per cent larger than it was last year, and the corn crop is to be more promising. About fifty per cent more corn has been planted; and twenty to seventy-five per cent less cotton. This is the condition of the planters in the North.

In Marengo county, the Dayton Grange has published an official report to the effect that the acreage in cotton in that county is twenty-three per cent less than it was last year, and the increase of small grain over two hundred per cent. We think all may safely conclude that, taking all the cotton States together, the acreage for 1874 is about twenty per cent less than it was in 1873. Should any disaster overtake the growing crop or the caterpillars come early, the crop for the present year will be unusually short; and so much the better for the Southern people. With plenty of provisions raised at home, a short cotton will net more money to our farmers than a large crop.

The Northwestern Grangers have, by consent of action, advanced the price of cotton to the planters. We hear it suggested by men high in the councils of the Grangers, that a similar combination is now being perfected in all the cotton growing States to secure a fair price for the next crop of cotton, and that twenty cents will probably be the price fixed for the interior markets. A movement is also on foot in some localities, to demand gold for the next crop, instead of depreciated Government fiat money.

The agricultural outlook for the Southern States is so encouraging at this time, that it is a matter of congratulation to all our people. If we are in any manner relieved to the influence of the Grangers for the present flattering conditions of things, all we have to say is, long live the Grangers.

BARBOUR.

The Mississippi Crop Outlook.

The floods of 1874, which are deluging the South and sweeping away the planters' crops, will have an effect they never had before. In past years the rising of the Mississippi, has been attended by much loss, but the loss this year promises to be greater than ever. Previous to the war, when the planter owned his field hands, when the before the deluge he had high land, taking hands, cattle and implements with him. The deluge was only a temporary setback. When the waters subsided, the whole plantation was recovered. The soil was in excellent condition for a late crop, and no time was lost in taking advantage of it. The harvest was always of usual richness, and the abundance of the yield more than compensated for the previous loss. Now the case is different. The hired farm hands stampeded at the first alarm, leaving the cattle and implements to the mercy of the floods. There will be no crop this year, when the waters subside. The loss in stock will be total. It is a gloomy outlook for the planters, who will be poorer by the waters than by the war. For they can at all times find compensation which bountiful Nature offers for her rude tumult.—Chicago Tribune.
