COURT SQUARE.

FUNERAL NOTICE.

The friends and acquaintances of Wm. H. Hill and family are invited to attend the funeral of his infant child this (Saturday) morning, at 10 o'clock, from his residence, on Hull street, below South.

The police force made only four arrests yesterday, all trifling, colored.

The fish market yesterday was decidedly the poorest yet.

A negro stole some shoes from a Court street merchant yesterday, and is still happy in their possession.

The Steamer Mary came up yesterday with a large amount of freight. She returned in the afternoon.

Hydrants are being placed in rear of nearly all the houses, on the North side of Court street.

It is said that all the courts that may be in session to-day, will adjourn as a compliment to our Editorial visitors.

The river is low, and falling rapidly. Hence, the complaints of the loud old Tally.

Bishop Wilmer is in the city, the guest of Mr. Joel White. He will preach in the Episcopal Church Sunday morning, and at night will administer the rite of confirmation to several persons.

The delegates from Montgomery to the Baptist Convention, at Jefferson Texas, are expected here this morning. Rev Mr. Gwin will preach at the First Baptist Church to-morrow morning and evening at the usual hour.

By oversight in copying the Sheriff's card yesterday, the words "co-operation," between the words "by" and "members," were omitted. The sentence should read as follows: "by co-operation of members of beats 3, 4, 5 and 9."

Many firms have requested us to tender the freedom of their offices to the guests of the city during their visit, and among others Messrs. Moses Brothers and Norton & Adams, whose Real Estate offices are most convenient to the Exchange.

We would suggest to our Opelika friends that the New York editors will reach that city on schedule time Sunday. Perhaps they can arrange to have a dinner for them. Opelika is one of Alabama's most thriving cities, and we want our Northern visitors to get as good a view of it as the short stop there will allow. The party will probably consist of seventy persons, which will include a delegation from the Alabama press.

Prof. Hogg, of the Mechanical and Agricultural College, left with us yesterday some samples of orchard grass, clover and wheat, grown on the Agricultural farm at Auburn, which it would be hard to beat in any portion of the United States. The wheat was sown on rather inferior upland. It was fertilized, and the yield now promises to be fully thirty-three bushels per acre. The clover was set out about one year ago. It is of the red-top variety, and is pretty enough to make a blue-grass farmer envious. The orchard grass is equally as fine as the wheat and clover. We are sorry that the New York editors will not have time to see our Agricultural College as they pass by Auburn on Sunday.

Pentecost, one of the three principal festivals of the Jews, began on the evening of the 21st instant, and yesterday there was a confirmation of children at the Jewish Synagogue in this city.

This festival was so called in the Greek and modern languages because it was celebrated on the fiftieth day after the feast of the Passover, but originally called the "feast of the weeks," because it was celebrated seven weeks after the sixteenth day of the first month of the Mosiac calendar (Nisan).

It was and is still observed by the Jews (now generally also on the day following the fiftieth) as a day of public rejoicing, and also in commemoration of the revelation of the law on Sinai, which happened on the same day. The day is also kept as a high festival in the Christian Church, to commemorate the descent of the Holy Ghost upon the Apostles, ten days after Christ's ascension, and the commencement of the preaching of the Gospel to the Gentiles. The Festival of the Pentecost was, in the early ages, one of the favorite seasons for baptism; and as those who received it were clothed in white, to symbolize the spiritual purity which baptism confers, the day acquired the name of Whitsunday, or Whitsuntide.

At 8:30 p. m. yesterday a special train arrived from Selma bearing the members of the New York Press Association and a delegation from the Alabama Press Association, who accompanied them in their visits to different points of interest in the State. They were welcomed by quite a large concourse of citizens at the foot of Commerce street and some enlivening strains of music by the Silver Cornet Band. They were invited to the Theatre, where, in behalf of the city of Montgomery, Mayor Faber delivered the following address of welcome:

Gentlemen—It is with no common pleasure that I discharge the duty devolving upon me, as Mayor, in welcoming you to our city. I greet you as the representatives of that mighty power so aptly called the Fourth Estate, which has in our country rendered, reformed, almost created anew, all three of the others.

Turn your thoughts back a little more than a century, to the time when your great forefathers, Franklin, commenced his struggle of life in the dingy, little printing office in Philadelphia. Consider the condition of society then existing in England and her colonies; as the result of a want of merely moral development; the low state of science; the lack of facilities for travel and transportation; the debasement of social life; the intolerance in religious matters, and the atrocious crimes, as matters of course and eliciting no remarks, which were constantly perpetrated in dealing with offences, political, religious or criminal, public or private.

Look then at the intellectual system inaugurated by the newspaper men in America; follow out its developments to the present time, and contrast the social state of America to-day, with that of England at the time I speak of, and you will begin to have a faint idea of the results accomplished, and the power for good exerted by an untrammeled press. Cheap reading everywhere in America—reading on all sides of every question—the newspaper a necessary of life—this is the mainspring of our wonderful national progress—this has dispelled the ignorance and made impossible the bigotry and cruelty of past ages—this alone, has made the nations of the old world look to our country for lessons in social and political development, as they look to our surplus of food and our abundance of clothing for their starving and naked millions.

You gentlemen are of those who have accomplished these results, who draw light from the ink-keg to elevate and educate the world. Recognizing your power and the wonderful work you are doing therewith, I repeat it gives me special pleasure to meet you and to bid you welcome to our city.

At the conclusion of the Mayor's remarks, he introduced the Hon. David Clifton, President of the Montgomery Industrial Aid Association.

Mr. Clifton said, in substance:

Gentlemen: The honorable the Mayor, as the representative of the City Council and the citizens generally, has extended to you a welcome to the city of Montgomery, in which we, in our capacity as citizens, most heartily unite and concur. In addition to this, however, it becomes my pleasing duty, as the organ of the Montgomery Industrial Association, to express to you an especial welcome. This Association having been instituted and established for the purpose of encouraging and fostering a more active and pervasive public spirit, and promoting by all legitimate means, the general interest and prosperity of the city, has cause for congratulation in the fact that an opportunity so favorable as this for disseminating knowledge of its immediate and surrounding advantages has occurred so soon after its organization.

In your rapid transit through the State you have been able to take only a cursory glance at its vast resources; yet, in your course hitherward, you have had opportunity of seeing the mountains of iron ore and measuring its vast fields of coal. Bordering on lands of fertility, and on either side, is entombed the accumulated wealth of ages past, abundant in its resources. Now you have reached this city, located in the midst of a most productive agricultural region of the State, you can look out and around upon a country, which, extending from the Tennessee River to the Gulf, furnishes a supply of mineral and metals adequate to the demands of a world; and, which, from its agricultural productions, has contributed millions to the mercantile and industrial business of the country, and has capacity to contribute millions more, with water-power to move machinery sufficient to utilize all its products. Send us capital and immigration, and Alabama will soon take its place among the first and greatest of her sister States. Notwithstanding the depressing and prostrating effects of epidemic influenza and an entire failure of crops, during the past year, this people is still so enterprising against such odds and adversities; although the storm lashes and the billows rise high, our heads are ever above water; and, by the help of God and our individual efforts, we intend to continue, until our feet stand upon firm land.

We fully recognize the power of the press. It fashions and controls public opinion and sentiment; mightier than an army, it overcomes, it overcomes, and stronger than the flood, it sweeps away the barriers of ignorance and prejudice.

It is to be regretted that your brief stay will prevent an extensive examination of the surrounding country, as without this, you can form no correct conception of the character and resources of the section, surrounding this city. Just on the North, within easy distance, is that inexhaustible region of mineral and metal; on the east, less than forty miles distant, is a water power unsurpassed by any in your own section, favored as it is in this respect; to the west is a flourishing manufacturing town, which bears the name of a benefactor of this people, and perpetuates for imitation his example of pluck, enterprise and success, and on every hand extends a rich agricultural country, with railroad facilities connecting with every point of the compass, and resting on the banks of a great river. These lead us to hope a great future for the city of our home.

While, too, is an era of communication. Rapid and growing means of intercourse are working wonderful changes in every department of human industry. However diverse may be the local interests, the general interests of the country are so interwoven that whatever promotes the interests of each locality promotes the interests of all the others. A better acquaintance with each other will result in a happier and more fruitful concert of action. Blessed is that here we have three score channels of communication through which you can make known to your people what you see and know. Come, then; know us and let us know you, and all rallying under the white banner of peace, the past history of the country will pale before the effulgent brightness of its coming years.

Again, gentlemen, I extend to you the hospitality of this city—hospitalities to be measured not by our contracted means, but by the desire of our hearts. Welcome to the city of Montgomery!

Mr. Parker, of Geneva, introduced Mr. Pease, of Saratoga, who responded on behalf of the New York editors. He referred in most eloquent and feeling terms to the kindness shown them since their arrival in the South.

The mineral regions of this State, he said, were not at all known, and although he had heard a great deal of them, personal inspection had convinced him that the half had not been told. He referred in most appropriate terms to the matters of difference between the sections in the past, and expressed a hope for a common union of interests and feelings in the future.

His remarks were received most favorably and were warmly applauded. We hope on to-morrow to present his remarks in full, and hence will not attempt an extended synopsis.

The entire party was then escorted to the Exchange Hotel, where rooms had been provided for them.

The Alabama Press Association, before adjourning at Birmingham, appointed a delegation to accompany their New York visitors in their tour through this State. A committee of citizens headed by Dr. Baldwin, and of the council headed by Capt. Ferguson, called on these gentlemen at the Exchange Hotel, and welcomed them to our city, and extended to them the hospitality of Montgomery. They expressed great pleasure at having them to visit us, and regret that their coming was not sooner known, though their welcome was none the less cordial.

A happy response was made and the invitation cordially accepted. The Alabama delegation is composed of the following gentlemen:

J. F. and L. W. Grant, Jacksonville Republican.

R. Randolph, Tuscaloosa Blade.

D. W. McIver, Tuskegee News.

J. H. Francis, Selma Times.

J. White, Moulton Advertiser.

B. O. Randall and S. B. Echols, Gadsden Times.

J. B. Roden and C. Roberts, Birmingham Age.

D. G. Haynes, Florence Republican.

G. M. Johnston, Huntsville Advocate.

T. A. McLaughlin, Birmingham Independent.

J. B. Stanley, Greenville Advocate.

J. R. Rodgers, Union Springs Herald.

A. B. Persinger, Jasper Mountain Eagle.

C. C. NeSmith, Somerville Free Press.

H. A. Hale, Birmingham News.

Major Kirby and wife, of the Chattanooga Times, and Mr. Goulson, of the Chattanooga Commercial, are of the party and will accompany them on the visit to their city. They were most cordially welcomed.

About 10 o'clock our visitors were escorted to the Standard Club, where everything had been arranged for a pleasant evening. Before going up stairs to the Hall, Mr. Jacob, President of the Standard Club, made quite a happy little speech welcoming them in behalf of the Muses to what enjoyment could be found in music and dancing.

A large number of ladies and gentlemen of the city were present to welcome the guests, and to make the evening pass pleasantly.

About ten o'clock the curtain rose and a most magnificent scene was presented. The whole of the stage had been arranged with the greatest care to represent a flower garden. It was perfect in taste and ingenuity. Over the stage was suspended a large quill pen, and a prettier sentiment could not well be conceived. It afforded pleasure not only to our visitors, but to all our home people.

The rest of the evening was spent in promenading, dancing, and in visits to the ice cream and strawberry room. At a late hour the assembly dispersed. We feel sure that our citizens were delighted at the opportunity of paying their respects to the visitors, and that their efforts are most warmly appreciated.

The members of the Standard Club have eclipsed themselves (if that were possible) in their kindness and hospitality, and to them and the Industrial Aid Association, under whose joint auspices the entertainment was given, most hearty thanks are due. Everything went off smoothly and pleasantly.

The programme for to-day will be found elsewhere.

THE GRAND CONCERT.

We were favored yesterday with a copy of the programme for this evening's entertainment at the Theatre, and must admit, that although we expected an unusually fine selection of music, we were not prepared for so elaborate and choice preparations. We confidently predict a most brilliant affair, and feel assured that our Northern and State Press visitors will be well impressed with this exhibition of cultivated taste and excellent amateur talent.

We advise all to secure reserved seats at Obitus—there is no extra expense—that there may be no unpleasant haste at the last moment.

To our visiting brethren of the Alabama and New York Press Associations we extend most cordial invitation to visit us during their sojourn in our city. We are gratified beyond measure at their presence in our midst, and hope most sincerely that they will have no cause to regret their visit to Montgomery.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Reported by the Associated Press for the Montgomery Daily Advertiser.

WASHINGTON, May 22.

The President and family have gone to New York.

The Judiciary Committee of the House gave a favorable consideration to the Civil Rights bill. They seem apprehensive of losing the jewel "constancy," if, having allowed the negroes to vote, they withhold other things, including access to gambling resorts and houses of ill fame.

Senate.—The memorial of the Agricultural Congress for half the public lands for the Agricultural College, was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

The conference report on the exportation of distilled spirits was adopted. The Civil Rights bill was resumed. Mr. Stockton, concluding his argument, predicted that the saddest consequences would flow from the passage of the bill. The Senate is still in session, and is believed will sit till a vote is reached.

House.—The bill for appropriations for the Southern Claims Commission passed. There are over one thousand names in the bill. None were excluded, though an effort was made to throw out Gen. Bayley, of La., on account of disloyalty.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the private calendar.

The Ways and Means Committee yesterday changed the wine bill from fifty cents to forty cents per gallon on all still wines, and from $2 to $1.50 per case. The Committee also voted to fix the duty on manufactured steel at two cents per pound, without regard to classification, which is a slight reduction.

WASHINGTON, May 22—11 p. m.

The Senate is still discussing the Civil Rights bill. No vote is reached. Merrimon has just taken the floor for a three hours' speech, and gave notice that after he finished, if the majority persisted in sitting it out, the minority would see who could sit the longest. Speeches have been made by Howe, Boutwell, Pease and Alcorn in favor of the bill, and Stockton, Cooper, Sausbury, Kelly and Merrimon against it.

The Baptist Bible and Publication Society commenced its Fifteenth Anniversary meeting here to-day. Many delegates are present. A resolution was adopted expressing confidence in the management of the Society, and in view of this important era of its history, and at the request of the management, a committee of seven was appointed to examine into its affairs. This afternoon there were addresses by Prof. Davis, of Va., Rev. Mr. Eddy, of Mass., Rev. Mr. Moss, of Pa., and others.

Probabilities.—For the Gulf States, Tennessee and the Ohio Valley, generally clear and warm weather, easterly or southerly winds and slowly falling barometer.

CHICAGO, May 22.

The Superior Court of Sangamon county yesterday decided that it had jurisdiction over the railroad cases sought to be taken to the Federal courts by the Chicago and Alton Railroad Company, and refused to send them up to the Circuit Court of the United States. This involves a direct conflict of jurisdiction between the State and United States court. A writ of certiorari, issued by the latter, was imperative upon the State court, and its refusal to obey the writ is therefore a clear case of contempt.

LONDON, May 22.

The Parliamentary election in Durham has been annulled on account of bribery, and the election in Galway on account of intimidation of electors.

Oppenheim & Schroeder, merchants, have failed—liabilities estimated at $3,000,000.

St. Louis, May 22.

In the Presbyterian General Assembly the question of a formula for the admission of members of the church was discussed and referred to a select committee.

The subject of the classification of benevolent work was discussed during the afternoon. The committee recommended boards as follows: Foreign Missions, Home Missions, Education and Relief, and Publication. The minority recommended a Board of Church Erection. No final action had.

PARIS, May 22.

The Ministry has been finally constituted, as follows: Gen. Clusay, Minister of War and Vice-President of the Council; De Cases, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Tourillon, Minister of the Interior; Magne, Minister of Finance; Eugene Cailan, Minister of Public Works; Louis Gualvat, Minister of Commerce; Viscount de Camont, Minister of Public Instruction; Adrien Tailhard, Minister of Justice.

NEW YORK, May 22.

A man and little girl were struck by lightning in Patterson, New Jersey, yesterday. The child is not expected to recover.

William Woodbury, one of the students drowned in Lake Geneva, was the son of Gen. Woodbury, of the United States Army.

A. T. Stewart dines the Presidential wedding party tonight. The guests include the President and Mrs. Grant.

LONDON, May 22.

The names of the American students who were drowned in Lake Geneva, near Lausanne, are now given as Wm. Woodbury, John Crane, and James Crab.

At this hour (4:30 p. m.) a heavy thunder storm, accompanied by sharp lightning, prevailed here. This is the first rain that has fallen for some time.

BAYONNE, May 22.

Engagements daily occur to gain the heights around Bidouze. The Carlists have gained some successes.

MADRID, May 22.

General Concha has entered Vittoria.

SANTANDER, May 22.

Carlitas has surprised and surrounded a detachment of volunteers near this city. Republicans at last accounts held out and relief had been sent there. Great excitement prevails here as the men in danger all belong to this place.

GALVESTON, Texas, May 22.

The News' special from Brownsville says there is a terrible state of affairs in that section. Judge Doherty reports that there is less security for persons or property between the Nueces and Rio Grande than heretofore. In Nueces and Live Oak counties, ranches have been destroyed by old frontiersmen. They will send affidavits to Gen. Steel substantiating the account of murders and robberies, and ask for authority to organize and protect themselves. A meeting of citizens was held at Corpus Christi last night and a committee of safety was appointed.

There have been no interments in three days. The undertakers begin to believe that the cremationists are about. The city is very healthy.

Mr. Frank Giovanni had charge of the ice cream and strawberry department at the Standard Club last evening. Everything was as neat as could be desired. The berries were fresh and the cream delicious, and all served in excellent style. Of course those who know him expected nothing else.

A dispatch from the Mobile Trade Company, received by the Lomax Committee yesterday, gives the melancholy tidings that there will be neither Tally, nor any other fast boat here next Tuesday; consequently, the friends of the company, who had anticipated the fine boat excursion on that day will be disappointed. The Trade Company gives assurances that the Tally or the Lee, will be here on Tuesday, June 2d, and then, the programme will be carried out. We hope the old Tally will soon get out of her sand-bar difficulties.

The following named gentlemen, members of the Editors and Publishers Association of the State of New York, arrived in the city by the Western road at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon:
