GRANGERS' COLUMN.

New Foe to Cotton.

The cotton plant has a new enemy. Its appearance and ravages are thus described in the Natchez Democrat-Courier of the 21st inst.

We are informed by a gentleman residing three miles from the city that a new enemy to the cotton plant has made its appearance on his place, being a small black worm. These worms have been seen in countless numbers all over the fields, and as soon as the first two leaves of the cotton make their appearance above ground, these pests "go for them" and eat them, totally destroying the stand. About half of the crop was up and has thus been destroyed, making it necessary to replant. These small worms work some on the young corn, but will not damage it much.

Cut Worms.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman says:

Your valuable preventive—one and one-half pounds of copperas to one bushel of corn—I tried as follows, with great success, and certain and most marked and astonishing results to all my hands: I pulverized two pounds copperas at night, and the next morning put in seed, and I put one and one-half bushels of corn in a separate vessel at night. After soaking twelve hours I poured off the water from the corn into a tub; I then added as much water as will cover the corn, and add to it the copperas water, and thoroughly mix, and pour over the corn, and let it remain in copperas water twelve hours; I then poured off the copperas water from the corn and rolled the seed corn in J. J. T. & Co.'s Excelsior plaster, and there were for planting 100 bushels of corn, four or five inches, and cover lightly with corn cover; but late I took a deeper. I tried this experiment on a soil of three years standing, plowed with a three-horse plow, and inches deep on the average; the ground was nicely pulverized. Planted on the 1st of May, three and one-half by three and one-half each way. Two days planting (ten acres), dampened the corn and rolled it in the plaster. The third day I had the corn prepared with copperas and ready to plant.

I planted the corn across a forty-acre field, by the side of the second day's planting, and there were between two and four days planting; all treated alike, except the application of copperas on the two bushels seed corn. To the surprise and astonishment of myself and hands, it came up regular, green and vigorous, and grew rapidly. I soon found it necessary to replant. I found on examination not a hill out nor a worm to be found where the copperas was used, and the entire field, except the two bushels of seed treated, was out from two to three hills out of five, and I often found from one to fifteen out worms in a hill. I was so worried I could not determine which plan was best; replant, plow and plant over, or check off between the rows. I have heard of such being done, but never tried it. I have ordered 150 pounds, and I am urging all of my friends to give it a trial. One bushel of corn will plant five acres, and one and one-half pounds of copperas will prepare the bushel of corn. Copperas can be bought in quantities to suit farmers at six or seven cents per pound. It would cost 1.2 cents per acre. It is cheap, simple and certain with others who tried it last year, and I regard this a valuable preventive.

Curiosities of Grafting.

There are many curious facts about vegetable life. We can, for example, graft the apricot on the plum, and the peach on the apricot, and the almond on the peach, and thus we may produce a tree with plum roots and almond leaves. The wood, however, of the stem will consist of four distinct varieties, the formed of the continuous layer. Below the almond wood and bark we shall have perfect apricot wood and bark, then perfect apricot wood and bark, and at the bottom perfect plum wood and bark. In this curious instance we see the intimate correspondence between the bark and the leaf, for if we should remove the almond branches we might cause the several sorts of wood to develop buds and leafy twigs each of its own kind. Each section of the compound stem has its seat of life in the cambium layer and the cambium of each reproduces cells of its own species out of a common nutrient fluid.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

Our Ores.

In the afternoon of the same day we were conveyed by special train to Ironton, where we saw the richest iron ore piled up in such abundance as to stagger the belief of any man who has not seen it for himself. Not buried hundreds of feet under the earth, but lying on the surface in a mass, fifty feet thick, one mile broad, and eighty miles long. On the other side of the mountain, within a few hundred yards of the ore, is a fine stream of water, and in close proximity is a sandstone for building furnaces. Not far away are the Cahawba and Warrior coal fields, many of the pits opening within a few feet of the railroad. It would seem that some mighty Vulcan, in ages past, contemplated establishing, in this region, an iron manufacturing, and after collecting all the material for conducting the business in a style worthy of a god, had, for some unknown cause, abandoned the idea.—Union Springs Herald & Times.

Lessons for Farmers.

A correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal says Mr. Lee Jordan, by his own admission, though the largest planter in Georgia, and raising each year since the war two or three thousand bales of cotton, has not saved a dollar by the operation. Every cent realized was needed to pay hands, buy provisions, and run the plantation, and he might have added, more besides. The writer gives the encouraging fact that Mr. Jordan has gone back to the old plan—raising enough provisions to do, and after that, all the cotton he can.

Unfavorable reports continue to reach us of the condition of crops in this country. Cotton prospects are gloomy, and corn crops are not so bright as they were in the spring. We have had no rain for some time; the soil is dry, and the crops are suffering. It is feared that the season will be a failure. The writer gives the encouraging fact that Mr. Jordan has gone back to the old plan—raising enough provisions to do, and after that, all the cotton he can.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Under and by virtue of a mortgage to us executed on the 1st day of April, 1873, by Paul G. Chappell, Martha Chappell, Octavia C. Hopkins and Marion Chappell, recorded in the office of the Judge of Probate of Lowndes county, Alabama, in Book 17 of Mortgages, pages 331, 332, 333, 334, 335 and 336, we will sell at the Artisan's Hall, in Montgomery, Ala., on the 1st day of MAY, 1874, the following described real and personal estate, to-wit: The lands situated in Lowndes county, Alabama, known as the homestead of the last J.
