CITY ITEMS.

The family of Dr. Frank Bell has removed back to Linwood, and not to Atlanta, as stated in our last issue.

Messrs. Parks & Hubbard have removed their law office to the old Elephant Building, known as the Carter Block.

Any person who desires to purchase a second-hand six octave Piano, in perfect order, at a low price, can hear of one by calling at this office.

Watch movements repaired, and cases polished as well as solid gold, by W. A. Crews.

Our energetic Sheriff, H. B. Segars, has a large number of sales in the present issue, which indicates that the business of his office is improving.

The Baptist Sunday School of Orion, it is reported, had a very pleasant celebration on Saturday last, which was attended by several Trojans.

A lady of this city has lost a pair of Spectacles, in heavy gold frames, which the finder will please return to this office, and be suitably rewarded.

Solid Gold Rings and Jewelry made to order, and work warranted, by CREWS.

Judge Wiley has left for Abbeville, where he is now holding the Henry County Circuit Court. He goes thence to Dale, Coffee, Blount and Barbour.

Mr. T. B. Hill having sold out his mercantile interest at Henderson's Store, has removed to this city and become connected with the Atlanta Warehouse.

Our section has been enjoying delightful Spring weather for several days past, and the strawberry beds are ripening and the peach trees are putting forth their blooms.

W. A. Crews has had fifteen years experience in repairing Watches and Clocks.

Mr. Thomas Beauchamp has removed to the dwelling recently vacated by Dr. G. W. Andrews, and opposite the residence of the Hon. Joel D. Murphy.

The Tax Collector of this county held his annual sale of lands belonging to delinquent tax payers, on Monday last, the purchases being mostly made for the State.

Mrs. D. S. Porter, wife of Mr. D. S. Porter, foreman of the Columbus Sun job office, died in that city, suddenly, on the 21st of Feb. We shall notice her decease in a suitable manner in our next issue.

Watches accurately adjusted in position and chronograph, by W. A. CREWS, TROY.

Attention is called to the list of Jurymen summoned for the next term of the Pike County Circuit Court, to be found in another column, and parties interested will do well to cut it out for future reference.

Messrs. Scarbrough & Cameron have opened up a fine little boot and shoe store, at Pete Scarbrough's old stand, which gives quite a business air to that portion of the Public Square.

The Columbus Sun-Enquirer has adopted the strictly cash, in advance, rule, and proposes to publish the names of all delinquent subscribers.

If you've not paid your printer's dues, you'd better tremble in your shoes.

Passengers from Troy, over the Mobile and Girard Railroad, can secure a good breakfast at the Johnson House, Union Springs.

The Public Schools of Troy are now in session, and we learn that they are being well attended. The Trustees have secured the services of Mrs. Clark and Miss Viola Johnson as teachers, both of whom are said to be fully competent for the position.

Mr. N. Corley, the well-known "chicken man," has removed to the store next door to W. W. Jones, and has proposed to sell hereafter to "do business on the square."

Mr. J. W. Scarbrough has also removed to same store, his boot and shoe business. The lands of the Mobile and Girard Railroad are still in the market, and Mr. R. W. Coleman, the land agent, who has his headquarters in this city, is prepared to make good terms with purchasers. The lands are desirable, the titles perfect, and the prices reasonable.

We are glad to see that our City Marshal, Col. John H. Morgan, has adopted a uniform of dark gray with brass buttons, and proposes to make his office one of dignity and importance in the eyes of rowdies and criminals. He evidently means business in his new clothing.

Passengers for Troy, on the Mobile and Girard Railroad, can get a good supper at the Johnson House, Union Springs.

Prof. J. P. Clarke has returned from Eufaula and resumed his music class, for which new pupils will be taken. This gentleman is an old and reliable teacher, and offers the most liberal terms to his patrons. He will also attend to tuning and repairing pianos, organs or melodeons, in response to orders left at this office, and guarantee satisfaction in his work.

Already the guano agents have made their appearance here, and even now our atmosphere is fragrant with the peculiar odor of that article. You can not only "see Fowl Guano," but you can smell it, too, guano anywhere about the depot or warehouses. Col. James and Capt. Green, of Columbus, were in town last week, arranging for the sale here of their guanos.

Messrs. F. A. Pomeroy and T. C. Pridgen, who now run the old stand of Siskier & Bocher, Columbus, have the thanks of the proprietor for a fine stand. This establishment is, immediately at the Front Street depot, and passengers find it very convenient to make purchases just as they are ready to take the cars. It saves time and trouble, and the above named gentlemen always have on hand the best of everything in their line.

Some of our exchanges seem to be ignorant of the fact, well established by history, that there is a Pike county in Georgia, Mississippi and other States, as they locate all Pike county items in Alabama. There is also a Troy in New York, Pennsylvania and other States, and we don't like to have so many Troy items, of murders, burglaries and other crimes, floating about without a definite location.

Alderman T. K. Brantley returned home, on Friday night, from an extended tour through Alabama for Meridian, Miss., and he reports that no place that he has visited presents as lively an appearance as our own flourishing little city. This statement, so frequently confirmed by visitors, ought to encourage our merchants and cause them to feel that the panic has treated them very generously as compared to other sections.

There was a delightful picnic party of old and young folks at Love's Fish Pond on Saturday last, where we had the pleasure of dining on some fish caught there by the young ladies of the party. The Hall is not open to the public, and therefore we return thanks for an invitation to skate, fish and sail on that happy occasion. Dr. Murphy is extending his fine vineyard to the other side of the pond, and also making other valuable improvements.

Some postically inclined individual has read the verses in last week's paper about the stylish church, and sends us a verified criticism on the same. As he fails to sign his name, in accordance with the established rule, we cannot publish his verses. The "moral," as he calls it, we think should not be lost, and so we give it here:

If golden ring, or rented pew,
Creates such false alarm,
I'll tell you what's the best to do—
"Go work upon a farm."

Our merchants, as well as every property owner in Troy, will be glad to know that in the Georgia House of Representatives, the bill that passed the Senate to transfer the stock owned by the State in the Atlantic & Gulf Railroad to the company, was, after debate, lost, a two-thirds vote being required. Yeas 75, nays 64. This action will defeat the immediate extension of the road to Pollard, via Geneva and Ozark, and thus secure to Troy a continuance of the trade that now comes to this point from the lower counties.

Don't fail to read the important announcement of Messrs. J. P. Stow & Co., the well-known hardware dealers of Montgomery, who, on account of a change in the firm, proposes to offer their entire stock of GENERAL HARDWARE at cost for cash, which affords farmers and country merchants a rare chance to supply themselves with hardware and farming implements at the very lowest prices. Messrs. Hall, Jackson & Barnett, the gentlemen who conduct the business of this house, are pleasant and accommodating, and pay prompt attention to their customers.

As we travel about in this and other States, and notice the numerous mechanical establishments that have closed up, we are more than ever convinced that the people of Troy do not sufficiently appreciate the indomitable energy, pluck and enterprise of Mr. Joseph Minchener, of the Conecuh Steam Works. Such men give new life to a town, and should by all means be sustained, in preference to patronizing establishments abroad.

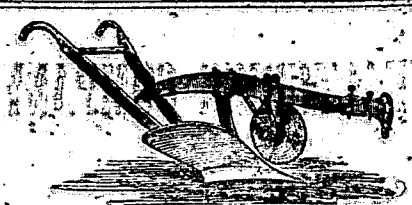

He now has employed two of the best workmen in the city, Messrs. Calvin Wingate and T. J. Smith, and the new dwelling which they are completing near the Steam Works, is the most elegant in its finish of any ever erected in Troy.

As the planters persist in buying commercial fertilizers, it is useless for us to urge them to adopt home-made manures, and we simply simply recommend them to purchase the best and most reliable brands of fertilizers now offered for sale here. Mr. T. B. Hill, of the Atlanta Warehouse, is agent for Mr. Wm. H. Young, a thorough and practical farmer, and a man who would neither sell nor recommend a worthless fertilizer to the public. Planters will do well to read his advertisement in this issue, of the celebrated Soluble Pacific Guano and other fertilizers, which he is now offering to his former patrons on the most liberal terms. Don't buy humbugs, but call at the Alabama Warehouse and purchase a reliable article.

The associate Editor has already announced the departure of Miss Addie Starks for her home in Virginia, and paid her a justly deserved tribute, yet we desire to give our cordial endorsement to all that he has said in her behalf. In season and out of season, for rich and poor, old and young, friends and foes, with an unselfish devotion and an untiring zeal, she sought to make her residence here fruitful of good works. She comforted the sick, relieved the poor, and prepared the dead for the grave; and in all grateful hearts she will long be remembered as one who shed joy and comfort about her pathway, and made her life one of devotion to the happiness of others. It was not hers to "Count that day lost whose low descending gun Viewed from her hand no worthy action done."

We are glad to see that the new pastor of the Methodist Church in this city, Rev. G. Waverly Briggs, proposes to inaugurate here the practice of holding "Motto Meetings." In Montgomery, Union Springs, and other cities where they have been held for some time past, these gatherings have proved beneficial, socially and pecuniarily, to the welfare of the church, and we hope they will be liberally patronized by our people, both old and young. The funds thus obtained will be used to replenish the Sunday School Library of the church. The first meeting will be held to-night (Thursday) at the residence of Col. E. B. Wilkerson, and members of all denominations are cordially invited to attend. Each visitor, however, being expected to contribute a small sum in aid of the above named most laudable object.

Grange Column.

"PATRONS, PLOW DEEP!"
That man who by the Plow would Thrive,
Himself must either Hold or Drive.

Items For Granges.

The amount of oats and wheat sown in Montgomery county this season is greater than for any three seasons combined since the war. The prospect for a good crop are flattering. The Opelika Observer says that 40,000 bushels of oats for seed have been sold at that place.

Owing to a press of local news, political matters, and advertising, we have been compelled to adopt a single column head for our Grange Department. This, however, will not prevent us from giving two columns of Grange news whenever it may become necessary. All space used will be governed by the amount of matter for publication under the Grange head.

At a late meeting of the Tusculoc Council of Granges, it was resolved, that the Council considers the debt and credit system ruinous to agriculturists; therefore the Council recommends, all Patrons of Husbandry to abandon the practice of buying their supplies on a credit, and to look to their farms alone for most of the necessities of life and to buy nothing that is not absolutely necessary, and in this way create no new debts, but pay the old.

At the last meeting of China Grove Grange a resolution was adopted that the members of that Grange do pledge themselves not to patronize or countenance persons who may engage in the suspicious business of bartering for country produce after dark, as it tends to dishonesty and theft on the part of a certain portion of the community. It is hoped that every Grange in the county, if it has not already done so, will adopt a similar resolution. Prompt and united action in the surest way to stop this species of illegal traffic, which encourages a large amount of stealing.

Messrs. Swift, Murphy & Co., the Planters' Warehouse, Columbus, under date of March 3d, quote that market as dull, ordinary 16@11, good ordinary 12@13, low middling 13; middling 14@14; New York dull and off, low middling 14; Liverpool the same, middling 14@14; futures in New York steady; gold 72; receipts at ports for three days 39,547 bales.

Messrs. A. & H. Strassburger, Grangers' Warehouse, Montgomery, report their market, under same date, as steady, with offerings light, ordinary 11, good ordinary 13, strict good, ordinary 13@14, low middling 14@14, middling 14@14; Liverpool dull; New York the same.

General News Items.

The decision of the Supreme Court, in the case of Smith, Auditor vs. Speed, Superintendent of Public Instruction, will have a very important bearing on State finances. By the decision just made, several hundred thousand dollars are prevented from coming into the State Treasury, and left with the County Treasurers to be expended for schools. The amount thus placed aside for schools, and the $100,000 required to be kept in the Treasury by the funding bill, to pay interest on the obligations provided by that act, will most effectually stop the already slow-moving wheels of the State Treasury.

The Columbus Sun-Enquirer reports a marriage in colored high life in that city, on Tuesday night of last week, the groom being a most excellent barber in Mr. Louis Wells' popular establishment. The report says—and we copy it to show that colored people who know their places, and who behave themselves, always have friends among the whites—the most fashionable wedding among the colored portion of our community was celebrated last night at the Episcopal church. Married, Miss Rosa Riley to Simon Clarke, a respected and first class barber. Rev. C. W. Hunter officiated. The couple and many white friends who were present at the church by invitation to witness the nuptials. Everything was done in the latest style—the usual number of attendants, and a reception at the bride's residence. It was a novel wedding. Both are among the very best of their race, and respected by their white friends for their uniform courtesy and good behavior.

The State Convention.

The recent meeting of the Executive Committee was full and its action harmonious. A Convention of the Democratic-Conservative men of the State is called for the 20th of July, and we heartily endorse what the West-Abolitionist says in regard to its action, that it will give us men to vote for who are well known all over Alabama—men who understand and respect and appreciate our people—men of sound judgment and practical sense. Our State needs the services of such men. Let a man be called to office because the place needs him, and not because he needs the place. Let the interest of the State control the nominations and not the interest of individuals. Listen with respect to the wishes and even prejudices of every section of the State. We believe that it is impossible for the Radical party to secure the control of the State at the next election. Four people do their whole duty.

An Earnest Appeal.

The Haymarket riot, which was always able and vigorous even in its defeat, is making a mistaken appeal for unity, strength and victory for the Democratic party in the coming struggle. We earnestly pray, says the editor, that there may be no discord in the ranks of the Conservatives of Alabama this year, as success is everything to us now. The moral influence of victory in the coming canvass will atone for every defect in the ultraforms or sufferings of the party. Central Alabama is suffering intolerably by the rule of the common enemy. It is no time for the people of the "black belt" to be precise about the terms upon which they shall go into the struggle. All we should ask from the white counties is that they will rescue us from the yoke of mongrel rule. We are oppressed with taxes, cursed with carpet baggies, often bullied by negro mobs. We ask only for deliverance. Our sign is that of distress. We wish to be freed from county officials who rob and insult us. We wish for laws that will check the stealing which cripples our planters. We wish for judges, magistrates, and juries who are impartial and unbiassed. We wish for the birth of taxation to be lifted from us.

BLEED THROUGH

MARCH.
In the snowing and the blowing,
O in the snowing and the blowing,
Little flowers begin their growing
Face beneath our feet.
Softly taps the Spring, and cheerily,
"Springing, are you here?"
Till they answer: "We are nearly,
Nearly ready, dear."
"Where is Winter, with his snowing?
Tell us, Spring," they say;
Then she answers: "He is going,
Going on his way."
"Poor old Winter does not love you,
But his time is past;
Soon my birds shall sing above you,
Set you free at last!"
—St. Nicholas for March.

A DIRGE.
BY PROF. D. P. HURLEY.
The sad and melancholy dirge floats by—
Now, "Dust to dust," comes sobbing through
The air;
The low and lonely couch is made, and he,
The gray-haired sire, his three-score years and Ten
Now, sped, has come to lay him down to sleep
In undisturbed repose, to sleep the sleep—
The long, unconscious, dreamless sleep of death!
His lone and lonely couch with loving hands
Is made; and labor o'er and anxious care
All past; add troubles fear all gone, he lies
Upon his dreamless bed.

Full well I know
His sleep is sweet. "A loving Father's eye
That sees the little sparrow's fall and counts
The hairs of those He loves, looks gently down
And watches o'er his rest. While seasons come
And go, and years end, ages onward sweep,
That eye will never sleep. The aged form
Of him, deeply loved, so much revered,
That loving Father's eye will ever watch
Till resurrection trump shall call him forth
To bloom forever in immortal youth.
Low in the dark and lonesome tomb he lies,
And there, in undisturbed repose, shall lie
Till all remembrance of his name and life
Shall be forgot on earth by living men—
Nay, even the marble shaft that marks the spot
Where now he lies shall crumble and decay,
And not a trace that e'er he lived be left
On earth's broad page.

And yet he is not dead,
That higher, better life beyond the tomb—
Beyond the cold and darkly rolling wave—
Is his. Like ancient patriarchs, he lived
A stranger here, with faith's clear vision fixed
On heavenly mansions and a home above,
Where verminous may rest and earthly ills
Diseased intrude. To that bright home he's gone,
And there he lives and shall forever live
In blissful immortality with God
And happy saints and angel hosts above.
May we, to whom by word and deed, the way
Of life he taught; may we, whose infant feet
He early led in wisdom's pleasant ways;
May we, for whom he wrought and yearned and Prayed,
May we, his mourning sons, with filial trust
And eye aloft, still onward tread the way
Which he has lately trod, until we meet
In that embrace upon that blissful shore,
Where pain is felt and parting feared no more.

The Lightning Rod Man.

In Blossburg, Pa., the other day a lightning rod man drove up in front of a handsome edifice standing in midst of trees and shrubs, and spoke to Mr. Summers, who was sitting on the steps in front. He accused Summers as the owner of the residence and said:
"I see you have no lightning rods on this house."
"No," said Summers.
"Are you going to put any on?"
"Well, I hadn't thought of it," replied Summers.
"You ought to. A tall building like this is very much exposed. I'd like to run you one of my rods: twisted steels, glass fenders, nickel-plated tips—everything complete. May I put one up to show you?
I'll do the job cheap."
"Certainly you may if you want to. I haven't the slightest objection," said Summers.

During the next half hour the man had his ladders up and his assistants at work and at the end of that time the job was complete. He called Summers out into the yard to admire it. He said to Summers:
"Now, that is well enough, but if it was my house I'd have another rod put on the other side. There's nothing like being protected thoroughly."
"That's true," said Summers, "it would be better."
"I'll put up another, shall I?" asked the man.
"Why, of course, if you think it's best,"
said Summers.

Accordingly the man went to work again and soon had the rod in its place.
"That's a first rate job," he said to Summers, as they both stood eyeing it. "I like such a man as you are. Big hearted, liberal, not afraid to put a dollar down for a good thing. There's some pleasure in dealin' with you. I like you so much that I'd put a couple more rods on that house, one on the north end and one on the south, for almost nothing."
"It would make things safer, I suppose,"
said Summers.
"Certainly it would. I'd better do it, hadn't I—hey?"
"Just as you think proper," said Summers.

So the man ran up two more rods, then came down and said to Summers, "There, that's done. Now let's settle up."
"Do what?"
"Why the job's finished, and now I'll take my money."
"You don't expect me to pay you I hope?"
"Of course I do. Didn't you tell me to put those rods on your house?"
"My house?" shouted Summers. "Ineyordered you to put those rods up. It would have been ridiculous. Why, man, this is the court house, and I'm here waiting for the court to assemble. I'm on the jury. You seemed to be anxious to rush out your rods, and as it was none of my business I let you go on. Pay for it!
Come, how much's that?"
The Blossburg people say that the manner in which the lightning rod man tore round town was fearful. But when he got his rods off the court house he left.
